NDP Plugs Reform Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The New Democrats, apparently hoping to forestall any one-sided action by the government on parliamentary reform, launched a public campaign Tuesday with concrete proposals for a more orderly conduct of parliamentary business.

Party Leader T. C. Douglas, flanked by most of the party's 17 MPs, outlined a 10-point reform program which includes adoption of a general timetable for Parliament within which the parties could negotiate allocation of debating time.

He told a press conference that the aim is to strike a balance between full debate on legislative measures and the need to get public business done.

PROPOSALS DISTRIBUTED

The New Democratic proposals, embodying many of the suggestions advanced by party whip Stanley Knowles to a Commons committee on rules reform, are being distributed to all MPs, newspapers, broadcasting outlets and periodicals in an effort to spark public discussion.

They follow closely on statements by Prime Minister Pearson that unless the parliamentary reform committee, stalled over recommendations about dividing up debating time, acts soon the government may have to act on its own.

MAY UNDESCUT RIGHTS

Mr. Pearson wasn't explicit about the kind of action but New Democrats say they fear any government proposals to change parliamentary rules may be too one-sided and undercut essential opposition rights. The 10-point rules plan also appeared to be aimed at getting

Secret's Out—Russians Join NATO

LONDON (AP)—Soviet planes, surface ships and submarines shadowed a North Atlantic Alliance naval exercise Tuesday, but Western commanders said the Russians would be more of a help than a hindrance.

NATO naval sources had said Monday they hoped to keep the exact area of the Atlantic exercise "team work" a secret from the Russians in order to prevent the pre-positioning of Soviet observer ships.

No announcement was made of where the exercise would be conducted until most of the warships of seven participating North Atlantic Pact countries were out to sea. Full radio silence was observed.

But naval sources reported Tuesday that Soviet planes, surface ships and submarines were shadowing the NATO manoeuvres between Iceland and Norway.

Two Crusader jet fighters from the U.S. aircraft carrier Independence intercepted two Soviet Bison bombers and escorted them out of the area. The U.S. and Soviet pilots waved to each other as they flew side by side.

"The Russians can tag along. If they want to learn something about operating a carrier they could learn a lot from watching the Independence, but they don't have carriers."

The navies of the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Norway are taking part in the exercise which continues until Oct. 2.

Yukon Official Says:

Let's Talk Over This Merger Plan

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—A member of the Yukon territorial council says the council should be "assembled at once" to discuss a proposal by Premier Bennett that the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and B.C. merge into one province.

"The council should be assembled at once so that we can discuss this and other ideas that have come out of the Alaska-B.C.-Yukon conference meeting," said Kenneth Thompson.

A poll of Whitehorse residents by the Star reported strong support for the proposal.

Meanwhile in Vancouver, Erik Nielsen, Conservative MP for Yukon Territory, termed the Bennett proposal "harmful."

"Very few people—in fact hardly anyone—is taking the premier seriously," he said in an interview.

ATLIN, B.C. (CP)—A helicopter pilot from Saanich watched in horror Monday as a single-engine Beaver aircraft curled into a spin and carried four men to death in Trapper Lake, 90 miles southwest of here.

Pilot William Dicks of Terrace, B.C., was killed, along with three passengers, one of whom was identified as E. J. (Ted) Powell, about 25, who came to Canada two years ago from Rhodesia.

A third victim was identified as Robin Gum of Crystal Brook, South Australia.

Name of the fourth victim was withheld.

Rod McRae, spokesman for Julian Mining Company of Vancouver, which employed the three prospectors, said helicopter pilot Bill Clifford of 5206 Old West Saanich Road witnessed the crash.

The Beaver had just taken off from the lake, about 320 miles northwest of Prince Rupert, B.C. It climbed to about 800 feet, then fell into a spin and crashed into the water.

Clifford flew his helicopter over the crash scene but was unable to pick up any of the victims.

Watching from the shore were Clifford's mechanic, Bert Fallman of Vancouver, and mining company personnel Bob Adamson, Joseph Roscoe and Norman McLeod.

Clifford is a pilot for Vancouver Island Helicopters Ltd.

Lodge in Ottawa For Asian Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Henry Cabot Lodge, former United States ambassador to South Vietnam arrived Tuesday night for talks with the Canadian government on the troubled Southeast Asia area.

"He's going to deal with adolescent minds"

The government should give assurances that Prof. Nicolae would not spread communist ideology and that national security would be fully protected.

Stanley Haidasz, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Martin, said the University of Saskatchewan took the initiative late last year and asked Soviet authorities to recommend a Russian who would be visiting professor at Regina for the 1964-65 academic year.

He said the external affairs department approved the project as part of the cultural exchange program in effect between Canada and Russia for several years. There had been no reason to deny a visa to Prof. Nicolae, 41.

A Red in Schoolhouse!

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative MP Ken More said in the Commons Tuesday night many Saskatchewan parents are worried that a visiting Russian professor of economics at the University of Saskatchewan will spread communism among the student body.

Mr. More, MP for Regina City, said he has received several letters from persons who were perplexed and "aroused" to learn that Prof. A. B. Nicolae of Moscow State University will teach economics at the Regina campus this academic year.

He asked the government to explain the purpose of inviting the Russian professor to Regina. What would be the orientation of the Russian's lectures?

"How far can he go?" asked Mr. More.

The Proposals

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of Finance Minister Gordon's proposals announced in the Commons Tuesday night:

- Future limit of 25 per cent foreign ownership of shares in banks and federally-incorporated insurance, trust and mortgage loan companies.
- Individual foreign ownership limited to 10 per cent.
- Existing foreign shareholdings not affected.
- Insurance, trust and mortgage loan companies allowed to invest up to 25 per cent of assets in certain common stocks instead of present 15 per cent.
- Mortgage lending limit raised to 75 per cent of appraised property value from present two-thirds.
- Power of insurance companies to invest in real estate would be "broadened."

Critics Praise Investment Curbs

OTTAWA (CP)—Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), a financial critic for the Conservative opposition, Tuesday night commended the government's move to put new curbs on foreign investment in Canada's banks, life insurance companies, trust companies and loan companies.

He told the Commons after the government plan had been outlined by Finance Minister Gordon that generally the Conservatives believe this is a move in the right direction. He said the move originally was started by former Conservative Finance Minister Donald Fleming in 1957.

Mr. Lambert said the minister's statement contained wide-sweeping implications which would have to be studied carefully by the opposition before further comment could be made.

ENFORCEMENT DIFFICULT
Colin Cameron (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands), NDP financial critic, commended Mr. Gordon for the basic aim of the legislation but expressed fears it would be difficult to enforce and police it.

Restrictions on corporate voting rights might prove almost impossible for the federal government to supervise.

He urged Mr. Gordon to revive his dormant proposal for a Canada development fund, which would channel pension plan reserves and other public capital into the private sector to replace foreign investment.

DRY UP SOURCE
Gilles Gregoire (Lapointe), Creditiste financial critic, said the legislation will dry up an important source of investment capital. This source would have to be replaced by the federal government or Canadian investors or the economy would suffer.

Bert Leboe (SC—Cariboo) did not comment on the announcement, saying he preferred to wait for the detailed bill. He expressed the hope, however, that the forthcoming Bank Act revision will give banks the right to offer first mortgages.

Cuban Flying Wedge

NASSAU (AP)—Bahamian government sources speculated Tuesday that Cuban Premier Fidel Castro might have opened an air route between Cuba and Nassau in the hope that he could bring home badly-needed American materials from the Bahamas.

OVERLOOKED

"We have told him that we will detain and deport any passengers coming in from Cuba on his planes," one high government source said. "That would make it rather pointless for him to operate a passenger service."

"We had overlooked the possibility that he might try to buy American spare parts, machinery and other goods and fly them to Cuba."

that could be used to block such aerial shipments out of the islands.

If none is found, one source said, the governor of the British colony could call the cabinet into session to draft regulations which would cover the situation.

The government-operated Cuban Airlines flew a Russian-built Dushin plane to Nassau Monday and announced it would fly a weekly schedule between here and Havana. The plane carried only mail and a six-man crew.

New Incentives Planned To Boost Auto Exports

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is preparing a new incentive to boost automotive exports if the year-old system of tariff rebates is offset by United States imposition of countervailing duties, it was learned Tuesday.

Sources close to the cabinet emphasized, however, that whatever new form the plan takes, the objective would remain to win for Canada a larger share of North American automotive production.

West Combines Fair Efforts

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada's four western provinces plan a joint effort for the 1967 World's Fair in Montreal, it was announced here Monday.

The tariff-rebate system is designed to increase Canadian exports by offering manufacturers in Canada a rebate of $1 in duties on imported cars and parts for every $1 worth of automotive exports above the level reached in the year ended Oct. 31, 1962.

NDP Plugs Reform

more action from the parliamentary reform committee which has been sitting most of this session of Parliament. New Democrats made it plain they blame the Progressive Conservative opposition for failure to get agreement in the committee on allocation of parliamentary time.

SESSION SECTIONS

Central item of the New Democratic plan is that the parliamentary session be divided into sections with provision for periods of time between these general divisions during which Commons committees would deal with matters referred to them.

Mr. Douglas said as an example the first section could cover the general throne speech debate, top priority legislation, placing detailed spending programs of the government departments before the Commons in a single motion and referring some departmental spending to committee.

COMMITTEE PERIOD

This would be followed by a period of committee work and in another NDP proposal, a period for MPs to visit their ridings to keep abreast of problems there.

The second section could cover the budget and financial legislation, other top priority legislation and, again, a period of committee investigation.

After a second break for constituency visits, the third section could receive reports of the committees, act on them and deal with remaining legislation.

One of the 10 points involves ensuring that the Commons receives reports of its committees which does not always happen now, and providing the committees with permanent secretaries to carry on the work from session to session.

Within this general framework, the New Democrats propose that the political parties attempt to allocate the number of days or hours which will be spent on the different legislative stages.

Spastic Colon Sufferers Should Avoid Rough Foods

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a spastic colon and was told not to eat rough foods. Which ones are they?—A.B.K.

Your goal is to avoid foods which will irritate the colon, and that means two main categories.

One is the group which contain a lot of roughage, or fibers or particles which are not reduced to a soft state by the time they reach the colon. The other consists of foods which have laxative properties—that is, they act on the colon so as to stimulate it into action.

The roughage or high residue foods include nuts, corn, bran, cabbage, broccoli, parsnips, turnips, lettuce, celery, radishes, raw pineapple and cucumbers.

You will note that these in general have vegetable fibers, or cellulose which will not digest easily.

For most of us, a certain amount of this roughage does no harm, and indeed, helps keep the bowel active and adequately eliminating wastes.

When one has colitis, the bowel is too "nervous" and sensitive, and needs to be kept calm instead of stirred up. So you avoid such foods with a residue of roughage.

Foods with laxative properties would include prunes, figs, rhubarb, berries, whole sections of citrus fruits (the juice is all right, however), and pineapple. Cooking in general softens the fibers of most vegetables and fruits, or if not, they can be strained or purged. (With berries, however, you certainly must remove the seeds; cooking doesn't soften them.)

EASILY TOLERATED Any number of cereals (barley, those containing bran) are easily tolerated. They may be crispy and crunchy in the box, but they soften nicely after they've been eaten; corn, rice, wheat and oat products are fine. They don't have to be soft as gruel when you eat 'em.

Alcoholic beverages (including beer) may be very irritating to a spastic colon. Be cautious!

The foregoing lists are by no means complete, but they give you an idea of what to avoid and what you may safely eat.

Because cooking softens vegetable fibers, you will find many that you can eat cooked (and perhaps strained) but not raw.

Dear Dr. Molner: My hands used to be bothered by dish-washing detergents. I changed creams. My hands cleared up in a few days.—M.N.

What's good for one person can be bad for another. Changing brands, or switching from detergents to soaps, or vice versa, and the use of hand creams to soothe irritated skin, is the answer for many women. But they'll have to find out by trial and error what suits THEM.

Low Ceiling for Outsiders

prevent shares being registered in the name of a Canadian where a non-resident is beneficial owner, but in such cases no one could vote the shares.

No one would be allowed to use the voting rights of shares held directly by a non-resident, or held for him by nominees, "if the total of the shares so held together with the shares held by or for shareholders associated with the non-resident exceeds 10 per cent of the issued shares of the company."

MIDNIGHT SIGNIFICANT

Mr. Gordon said midnight Tuesday would be significant in three respects:

"First, it will be proposed that if the directors of a company allow the entry in the company's books of any transfer of outstanding shares or allotments of newly-issued shares to a non-resident after Tuesday that would increase the number of shares held by non-residents beyond 25 per cent of the total number of issued shares, no one will be permitted to exercise the voting rights pertaining to the shares so transferred or allotted so long as they continue to be held by or for a non-resident."

"In the case of a company that Tuesday has more than 25 per cent of its issued shares held by non-residents, this suspension of voting rights would apply only to transfers or allotments of shares that would increase the proportion of shares held by non-residents, but the voting rights pertaining to shares now held by non-residents would not be disturbed."

CEASE EXEMPTION

"Second, the prohibition against the exercising of voting rights, applicable in the case of any holding of shares by or for a non-resident and associated shareholders that exceeds 10 per cent of the issued shares, would not apply to any such holdings that now exist. However, this exemption would cease if any such holding is increased after Tuesday."

TRANSFER SHARES

"Third, if more than 50 per cent of the shares of a company are held by or for one non-resident, that company would be exempt from these limitations on the transfer of shares and the exercise of voting rights so long as that condition continues to exist."

Mr. Gordon said he wanted to make clear that the proposals "will not affect the great majority of normal market transactions in the shares of the institutions concerned."

NOT AFFECTED

"If trading is for resident ownership, these transactions are not affected at all."

"Transfers of shares between non-residents also will not be affected unless the transfer would cause a non-resident to acquire more than 10 per cent of the total number of issued shares."

In a press conference later, Mr. Gordon declined to discuss details of the proposals.

He said these will become available when the bill itself is introduced in the commons to day.

Asked whether any imminent foreign take-over of financial institutions had spurred his ownership proposals, Mr. Gordon replied:

"No. This is not last-ditch legislation to stop something. This is legislation to stop a trend."

He said he believed Canadians in general would support the move and that the legislation would be "well received" in the financial community.

Questioned about how the government intended to control stock transfers, Mr. Gordon said he and his officials had been "wrestling" with this problem all summer.

There would be some difficulties—but not too many.

Diefenbaker Uses Farm Bill To Lash Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker used a minor farm bill Tuesday as a stepping stone for a soaring attack on the Liberal farm program and Agriculture Minister Harry Hays.

Winds Aid Fire Fighters

SONOMA, Calif. (UPI) —

Changing winds Tuesday aided fire fighters in their battle against a brush and timber blaze in the famed Valley of the Moon and officials predicted containment within 48 hours.

John Hess of the California division of forestry said it was hoped the fire would be contained by Thursday morning and that fire fighters have every hope that it can be stopped before it reaches Sonoma.

The fire, which started Saturday, forced evacuation of 200 to 250 persons from the communities of Boyes Hot Springs, Agua Caliente and Fetters Hot Springs.

PRISONERS HELD

A total of 4,000 men battled this fire and others throughout the dry northern half of California while another blaze in Montecito in the southern part of the state destroyed at least three large homes near Santa Barbara.

The fire lines in the Valley of the Moon were being manned by 500 fire fighters, including prisoners from San Quentin and Folsom Prisons.

Hess said the forestry service hoped to contain the fire at a spot on Agua Caliente Creek near Boyes Hot Springs.

Smokes Billow In August

OTTAWA (CP) — Figures released Tuesday by the bureau of statistics show an apparent upward surge in smoking in August as compared with July.

The bureau said the number of cigarettes for which excise tax stamps were purchased by manufacturers (moving stocks out of warehouses) totalled 5,530,537,310 in August, 1964, compared with 5,315,329,190 in July and 4,616,029,289 in June.

Bandishing a paper he said was the Liberal Party's farm platform in the last election, he said reading it was like going through a book of fiction.

The piece of legislation before the House—a bill that would enable the Farm Credit Corporation to give loans to syndicates of farmers to buy farm machinery—was "ill-digested, ill-considered and completely insufficient in any way to meet the farm problem."

'SUBTERFUGE'

It was harmless in itself but had been put forth as "a subterfuge to conceal the failure to act on behalf of agriculture."

He went through the Liberal pre-election promises asking what had been done. As his supporters chanted "nothing" following each item, he termed the government's whole agricultural program as a "symphony of nothing."

He said it was time for the government to wake up. "We've had for too long a minister of agriculture who is away from this House."

BACK FROM TRIP

Mr. Hays was in the Commons after the supper adjournment. He had been in France and London for talks with agriculture officials there.

Mr. Diefenbaker complained there was no minister in the Commons to answer questions on the legislation.

The minister's parliamentary secretary, Bruce S. Beer (L-Peel) was there but he had no authority to speak for the government. Mr. Diefenbaker said. The bill had been placed on the "estimable shoulders of a gentleman who cannot speak with the authority of a cabinet minister."

AID TO EAST

Mr. Diefenbaker demanded that the government come to the aid of Eastern dairy farmers. In making the demand he spoke not as leader of the opposition but as a "Westerner" and he said all Western farmers would support aid to the problems of Eastern agriculture which were the most serious in the country.

H. W. Herridge (NDP-Kootenay West) said the bill is somewhat unusual and its purpose is still a mystery. However, he added, his party supports co-operative ownership of farm machinery and processing facilities and will support the bill in principle.

War Book Says

Canadians Also Shot Prisoners-of-War

By JOSEPH MacSWEN

LONDON (CP)—Author Alexander McKee said Tuesday prisoners of war were slain by both Anglo-Canadian forces and by the Germans in the Normandy campaign of 1944.

Commenting on criticism of his new book, Caen: Anvil of Victory, McKee said such killings are a hazard of war at any time but they "happened in Normandy rather more than elsewhere," although not in all units.

"The book asks why," he said "I am not condemning anyone."

McKee's conversations with men on both sides in the historic battle had convinced him the reason was twofold. The first was the "now or never" nature of the battle.

The second reason was the "fright and fury" of the battle, one of the fiercest of the Second World War, on any front, said McKee.

McKee, 46, talking by telephone to The Canadian Press from his Hampshire home.

Canadian activities form a large part of Caen, published in Canada by Ryerson Press, Toronto.

McKee said he has received no comment from Canada. English reaction was generally favorable to his book except for comments by two former war correspondents in The Daily Telegraph, a London newspaper.

"They don't seem to have heard of these killings—every one else has," said McKee.

H. D. Ziman, who was The Telegraph's war correspondent with the 1st Canadian Army, denied in a letter to the newspaper Tuesday that he ever wrote of the Canadians committing atrocities. He quotes McKee as saying Ziman had in a "sort of back-handed way."

David Woodward, former war correspondent with the British Broadcasting Corporation, noted in a review of Caen earlier that German SS Gen. Kurt Meyer was sentenced for responsibility in the shooting of Canadian prisoners.

"Mr. McKee apparently accepts Meyer's statement that he saw German prisoners who had been lined up and shot by Canadians, but offers no further evidence," Woodward said.

In a footnote, McKee cites as authority a book co-written by Meyer, whose death sentence was commuted to 14 years in the prison camp by the Canadians.

"I thought I had made it clear that, on both sides, this was an unorganized affair, not always general, and most complicated to unravel because of the many 'border-line' cases."

"I was myself a witness, later in the campaign, to a typical example where there was some uncertainty as to whether a group of SS men coming out of a house were surrendering or not; they were in any case shot down. It was not customary (in the Canadian army at any rate) to give anyone the benefit of the doubt."

McKee's book is published by Macmillan, London, and is available in paperback for 10s. 6d. (10s. 0d. in Canada).

Guest Appearances On Flag-of-Week

MONTREAL—The man thought by many to be Canada's foremost living artist, Harold Town, has come up with a novel scheme for pleasing everyone on the national flag issue.

Town suggested there be a flag-of-the-week. "The flag should have a slot so that we could insert a miniature emblem of whatever country has been nice to us that week," Town said in jest.

"It would be a sort of the flag-of-the-week contest with all the countries of the world competing to be our friend. The idea has another merit. It would prevent whatever country we show on our flag from firing on us that week," he added.

'Too Long at Church'

Parents on Stand In Minister's Trial

CHATHAM (CP) — Mothers and fathers of teen-age prosecution witnesses testified Tuesday at the trial of Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh, a United Church minister charged with eight counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency. Mr. Horsburgh has pleaded not guilty.

One man said his troubles with his 15-year-old daughter included physical attacks the girl had made on her mother. He said he asked the police for help at the time.

ADVISED CAMP

The mother of the girl testified that she had had conversations with Mr. Horsburgh concerning her daughter whom she considered unmanageable.

"On one occasion he said she needed to learn discipline and should, perhaps, go to a camp or a boarding school," the mother said. "I believe he had a sincere interest in her welfare, but she spent more time there (at the church) than we wanted."

The girl testified earlier in the day that she had spent a night in the church, sleeping with a boy and a girl friend on two couches that were shoved together to make one bed in the apartment of the church.

The girl, who said she began going to Mr. Horsburgh's church because of its activities for young people, testified she had sexual relations with the boy.

The girl's 15-year-old girl friend testified Tuesday that she was forced by another boy to have intercourse with him in the apartment located in the church building. She said this happened after Mr. Horsburgh, who was in his office at the time, gave her permission to go upstairs to look over some second hand clothing.

Austrians Invited By Bennett

VIENNA (Reuters) — Premier Bennett of British Columbia, currently visiting Austria at the invitation of the Lower Austria provincial government, has invited several firms to open bureaus in Canada, a Lower Austrian government spokesman reported Tuesday.

The Wagner-Biro concern, a producer of hydro-electric power plant equipment, has already accepted the invitation, the spokesman said.

Bennett, who is visiting the most important Austrian hydro-electric power plants and power plant equipment producers, leaves for London Thursday.

Sacred Leader Says

Cypriots Using 'Secret Weapon'

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Tuesday he believes the Canadian army's difficulties with Turkish Cypriot women wielding sticks and stones will be settled.

Social Credit Leader Thompson referred in the Commons question period to attacks last Sunday by the women on Canadian units in the United Nations Cyprus peacekeeping force, saying the Canadians had been "subjected to a new secret weapon."

Mr. Martin said the United Nations command in Cyprus had taken the incident up with leaders of the Turkish community on the island, and added: "I suspect it will be resolved satisfactorily."

Mr. Martin said the UN Security Council is still considering the terms for renewing the peacekeeping force's mandate on the island.

New Democrat Leader Douglas asked whether Canada is insisting on conditions for continuing Canadian participation, including stronger terms of reference, freedom of movement for the UN troops and the right to disarm guerrillas.

Mr. Martin said he wouldn't agree that Canada was insisting on conditions, but it has urged that the force's powers be clearly and unequivocally established.

Among the terms UN Secretary-General U Thant is seeking from the Security Council are the three conditions stated by Mr. Douglas, Mr. Martin said.

Colombia Greets De Gaulle

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—President de Gaulle of France arrived in Bogota Tuesday on the second lap of his 10-nation Latin American tour. While thousands greeted him enthusiastically, the Colombian army hunted for a French terrorist suspected of lurking in this gaily-decorated mountain city.

Power to Be Shared

Bishops Become Pope's Partners

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Ecclesiastical Council bishops voted Tuesday to make themselves colleagues of the Pope in running the Roman Catholic Church.

Pope Paul had endorsed the idea of "collegiality of bishops," as the sharing of governing powers is called.

Opponents contended it will strip away some of the pontiff's powers but advocates maintained it will not diminish the role of the Pope or his supremacy.

NEW DOCTRINE

The proposal, approved by the overwhelming vote of 1,918 to 22, opens the way to a new Catholic doctrine on the relationship between the pontiff and the bishops. Votes in the coming days will specifically define the relationship.

One of the major goals of the council of bishops set originally by the late Pope John, and confirmed by Pope Paul, is eventual Christian unity.

Some non-Catholic Christian churches long have felt that too much power is concentrated in the hands of the pontiff. Objections also have been voiced to the doctrine of papal infallibility.

MAJOR ADVANCE

Since the first Vatican Council of 1870 defined papal infallibility, the much-debated collegiality of bishops will be the first major advance in doctrine about the Roman Catholic church.

The council had many other important subjects to deal with, Pope Paul said in opening the third session on Sept. 14. But this one seemed to be the weightiest and most delicate.

"The council's deliberations on this subject will certainly be what distinguishes this solemn and historic synod in the memory of future ages."

UN Mandate For Cyprus Still Awaited

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Security Council held its fifth meeting on renewal of the United Nations Cyprus force Tuesday without reaching agreement.

Diplomatic sources said negotiations outside the council on terms of the renewal had become confused and difficult.

But they continued to predict that a draft resolution acceptable to all 11 members will be worked out. The present three-month mandate expires Saturday.

What Goes On?

CANADA'S PRESENT and future role within the two major international military defence organizations to which it presently belongs seems to be clouded with uncertainty.

Within the past week statements made by both the acting prime minister, Mr. Paul Martin, and Dr. R. J. Sutherland, chief of operational research for the defence research board and one of the principal advisers to the minister of national defence have revealed (a) that the Canadian government is dissatisfied with the present NATO setup and (b) that the present government of Canada believes that NORAD is becoming obsolete.

Since then Ottawa observers, undoubtedly aided and abetted by certain defence department officials, are openly predicting that the North American Air Defence Command agreement between Canada and the United States will be terminated shortly.

To the Canadian public, long inculcated by successive Ottawa governments with the idea that Canada must play a full and responsible part in the defence of the free world, these reports and speculations are highly disturbing.

Certainly it cannot be denied that mutual defence arrangements such as those now in force are open to continual revision and change. This the public would accept if a clear and understandable statement were made on the matter.

However, rather than tackle the matter in this straightforward manner, Defence Minister Paul Hellyer seems to prefer the back-door approach in keeping the people informed of the latest developments.

Even under close questioning in the House on Dr. Sutherland's NORAD statement, Mr. Hellyer chose to evade the issue by either skirting around the subject or refusing to answer at all.

The spectacle of this minister, upon whose shoulders rests the major responsibility for Canada's defence policy and national security, employing the tactics of kite-flying and rumors to advise the nation of its present and future defence status hardly enhances the reputation of his government either at home or abroad.

No Longer Tenable

BRITISH COLUMBIA is exporting an average of nearly 300,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas a day to the United States. This represents in energy value about 5,000,000 horsepower of electricity—considerably more than is the projected output of the Columbia River Treaty dams.

The exporting company, Westcoast Transmission, has a main line which at present runs from Taylor, near Fort St. John, to the international boundary at Huntington, and later this year the line will be extended over 200 miles further north to tap the rich natural gas fields of northeastern B.C.

Of growing concern to the people of British Columbia and to its government, is the fact that Westcoast is not making a cent of profit from its sale of gas to the United States.

This fact was established as long ago as 1958 by the Borden Royal Commission, but the contract which Westcoast was forced to sign in order to win a licence to sell Canadian gas in the U.S. is for a period of 20 years. This means that for 14 years more, the natural gas resources of the province are to be given away at cost or less.

Westcoast is the only natural gas carrier available to the natural gas producers of the B.C. gasfield area. There is no competition.

Westcoast pays its suppliers between nine and 11 cents a thousand cubic feet at the wellhead, a sum about half that which is paid by distributing pipelines in neighboring Alberta.

The gas producers are squawking like mad, and in self-defence are concentrating their exploration and development programs in Alberta where the rewards are greater.

As a result the natural gas deposits of northern B.C. are stalemated unless something is done to enable Westcoast to be relieved of its burdensome U.S. contract and so allow the company to pay the B.C. producers a fair and equitable price for their gas.

What makes the U.S. contract worse is that it compels Westcoast to rely on its B.C. customers for its profit-making capacity. This means that B.C. gas users are paying more than they should in order to provide profits for Westcoast, which in turn is dominated by U.S. interests.

In our society a business contract is inviolate, and must be honored until such time as it is impossible to fulfill. No one in authority suggests that Westcoast should renege, but there is a strong and growing feeling that government pressure must be brought to bear on the interested parties in the U.S. that the contract is neither fair nor equitable, and that steps must be taken to have it rewritten.

When one considers the tremendous advantage which cheap B.C. gas is conferring upon competitors of B.C. in the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and northern California, it makes it highly important that steps towards that revision should be taken without further delay.

The people of this province should insist that their natural resources should not be thrown away unprofitably in this way for another 14 years.

FAMOUS LETTERS IN CANADIAN HISTORY—NO. 10

Forecasts Change

The architects of Confederation soon saw the changes their new nation was bringing to world affairs.

In this letter to Sir John A. Macdonald, his High Commissioner to Great Britain, Sir Alexander T. Galt stressed the growing feeling of strength and independence among the British dominions.

These two men had been among the key figures at both the Charlottetown and Quebec conferences which led to the Canadian Confederation in 1867. Sir John A. became the first prime minister and Sir Alexander was his first finance minister.

As a promoter of the Grand Trunk Railway Sir Alexander first visualized the union of the Canadian provinces and joined the first Carleton Place administration on the understanding that union would be one of the planks in its platform.

Although he abandoned politics shortly after it became a reality he was called back to the public service to be the first High Commissioner to Britain in 1880.

My dear Macdonald—

I think you will be interested in reading the enclosed paper sent me by my Australian friends. It is their case in re: New Guinea and the Pacific Islands.

The growing strength of such communities as our own and Australia is very speedily going to work great changes in Imperial administration.

Neither they nor we recognize the English Premier as ours nor are willing to accept a policy based upon the interests of the British Isles alone.

Uncertain Attachment, Then

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonial Ottawa Bureau

WEEKS ago, when the summer was still young and the flag war just a mere opening skirmish, Prime Minister Pearson and his wife Maryon gave a cocktail party for the press on the sun-splashed lawns of their official residence at 24 Sussex Drive, perched on the high sandstone cliffs of the Ottawa River just across the way from Rideau Hall, home of the governor-general.

Down at the far end of the long lawn, near the property line dividing the prime minister's gardens from the lawns of the adjoining French Embassy, was a tall white flagpole.

And from it was flying Canada's still-official red ensign.

"I see," one of his more-than-200 guests said pleasantly to the prime minister, "you're flying the ensign. But why aren't you flying your new flag, too, so we can all see how it looks?"

"Well," he answered, "I'm not married to it."

The little exchange—it was between Mr. Pearson and the wife of one of the Press Gallery correspondents—went almost unnoticed.

But not unnoticed was Conservative Leader Diefenbaker when he stormed into the Commons a couple of weeks later and accused the prime minister of flying, almost "secretly," his new Maple Leaf flag back of the Pearson summer home in the pine-scented Galesburg Hills at Harrington Lake, 18 miles north of the capital.

He had been flying it, the prime minister admitted, this time without mentioning he was still not "married" to it, but went on to express great mystification that somebody should have taken the time and obvious trouble to spy it out and report it to the Conservative leader.

And there was a great hullabaloo when the Maple Leaf flag was run up a temporary staff erected especially on Parliament Hill immediately in front of the Peace Tower, and Vancouver New Democrat, loyal, British-born Harold Winch, weeping, tried to pull it down.

Since then, no more prime ministerial attempts have been made to run up the Maple Leaf flag in official places, to see who salutes.

I sent replies to both writers. My letter to the first was returned unopened and marked "not traceable"; my correspondence with the second, which is still continuing, led to our meeting in England.

Thus the exponent of the West German point of view was proved to be phony; the supporter of the East German point of view proved genuine. I suspect that much of the news we get comes from a very efficient West German propaganda machine.

For if the Maple Leaf emblem had waved over one of the capital's most heavily travelled boulevards, the prime minister would almost have been compelled to say something about it.

And his revealing reference to his then uncertain attachment to it as a sort of common law rather than legal flag marriage would have been more than a passing reference.

Indeed, it might have been a headline, and changed the course of flag war history.

Don't let 'em kid you with the sob stuff about the "poor" MPs, working all summer long, not getting a holiday.

Many—perhaps most—of them did.

There was one, a West Coast member, who left the Commons in June for almost three months of junketing around Europe, taking in the odd semi-official government-blessed conference, and didn't show up in the House again until just a couple of weeks ago.

Then there were others who took shorter holidays, although, except in private, they didn't ever call them that.

How can they get away with it, when votes in the Commons on formal divisions, surely must betray the many and chronic absentees?

Easy. As one MP cynic put it: who keeps track?

Or as another hardly less cynical MP explained it—quite openly, too, over coffee in the Parliamentary Cafeteria for all to hear—who knows where you are anyway?

"Just go ahead and take a holiday," advised the MP, "and you'll never be missed. I know that from experience."

"Your constituents think you are in Ottawa attending to Parliament, and the party whip thinks you're back home attending to the constituency—and only you have to know you're neither place."

It'll be interesting to see, when the public accounts are published, just how many MPs admit to more than the permitted 21 days of absence in any one session. Last time the official return was made, only two—that's two out of 263—confessed to so much as a day.

Our Readers' Views

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest, and must be less than 200 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

This is now one of the finest streets in Victoria.

But please let's not see it needlessly spoiled, as many other city streets have been, by the application of pea-gravel over that excellent surface. In many cases after this seal coating procedure the surface becomes ridged or else it bleeds in the hot weather and becomes dangerously smooth.

If this were necessary there would be some excuse but the most competent authorities in the field point out that there is no finer road surface than properly designed asphaltic concrete. If this is so, either the city is not applying a properly designed mix in the first instance or they are needlessly spoiling an excellent road surface and throwing money away at the same time.

A CITIZEN.

The international businessmen's conference at Harrison Hot Springs wound up with Americans railing at Canadians for—as they put it—trading with the enemy. Any enemy of theirs becomes ours. And indeed it appears to be so. We seem to have neither decency nor courage in our relations with the U.S. It must be plain to all that the only freedom that country tolerates is the freedom for them to dominate. Surely diplomacy can find a way to say to the States, "Leave Cuba alone." We could also ask about dominance and subversion in Latin America and outright hostility in Viet Nam.

Could it be that our leaders consider this behavior trifling fault? The alternative is fear and subservience, and we should be informed. For my part, I think the richest country in the world, which is Canada, need entertain neither the one nor the other.

Enlightening

May I take this opportunity to compliment The Daily Colonist on their series "Famous Letters in Canadian History."

In these days of national disunity and misunderstanding between the cultures of our nation, there is a need for Canadians to be enlightened as to the part that the two major cultures of our nation have played in establishing our national heritage.

I personally have found this series to be most interesting and informative and feel that The Daily Colonist in establishing this series is doing a great public service to the people of Victoria.

Overpressure Carpet

Explosive Racket

By CASSANDRA from London

HERE'S a new piece of jargon for you. It is the "Overpressure Carpet" and, if you think that it is something you put on the dining room floor, you've got another think coming to you.

What is the "Overpressure Carpet"? It is, so they tell me, the physical and aerodynamic problem that has to be faced in the operation of any supersonic aircraft.

In other words, the hideous, screaming, thunderous, explosive racket that the Anglo-French Concord aircraft and its American counterparts will make when they cut a swathe of erupting sound 50 miles wide as they tear across the sky.

Now, the aerodynamic boys with their slide-rules have divided this new affliction into three main classes.

1. Noise that is tolerable, but to some extent bothersome.
2. Noise that creates significant public reaction. No damage to ground structures.
3. Widespread public reaction. Damage to glass and plaster.

Note the calm detachment and cool assumption that this infernal row will inevitably be inflicted upon us. The other day an American student of this ear-splitting subject remarked rather wistfully that he supposed that the fish in the sea will be about the only living things that are incapable of being indifferent to supersonic disturbance.

Almost immediately after he had spoken, a news report came through that, in an area where military aircraft flying faster than sound had been conducting experiments, a shoal of mullet came floating, belly upwards, to the surface of the sea. They were temporarily stunned.

You have been warned.

IN contrast to the screaming supersonic days of the 1950s, I have been reading an ancient little diary that a reader has just sent me.

It was kept by a girl in the year 1763. The leather is in fairly good shape, and the writing inside is as clear and legible as it was when it was first written 200 years ago in George III's time.

The entries, scattered and broken as they are, make a fascinating mosaic. They begin: "Paid for this book One Shilling." The theme then runs on: "Received the account of my Dear Mama coming into the County."

"Drank Tea and supped with my Uncle. Drank Tea with Miss Parloe."

"Given me Five Shillings and Sixpence. Lost Two pence."

"Walked to see skating on the River."

"This morning about One o'clock I lost the best of Grand-mamas. The greatest Affliction I ever knew. Oh, may I never experience the like again."

"Mrs. Sixty drank Tea with us."

"Bought a pair of Buckles. Tenpence."

"My Brother made me a present of a silver thimble."

"Drank Tea at my Uncle's."

"Set out on our journey about Seven o'clock. Breakfast at Broadway. Dined at Chapel on the Heath. Stopped Woodstock. Arrived at Oxford at Eight o'clock in the evening. Set out from Oxford, stopped at High Wycombe. Dined at Uxbridge. Arrived in London about Eight o'clock."

"My Uncle gave me an airing in a Coach. Drank Tea with my Aunt. I walked with the Young Ladies in Marylebone Gardens."

Poor little girl of long ago. She went by coach. She couldn't travel at 1,500 miles an hour cracking windows, beating down plaster, and rendering life intolerable for hundreds of thousands of people.

Poor little peaceful girl drinking with Mrs. Sixty long, long ago and showing her a silver thimble.

ONE of my greatest humiliations in cookery occurred during the war in Italy.

I promised to make a monster omelette for my brother warriors, and we scrounged a very large clutch of eggs from the natives.

I got the petrol fire going, beat up the eggs into the correct consistency and was bragging and prattling away, as is my custom when cooking, and started to open the drum of oleo margarine.

It was not margarine. It was marmalade and, short of using some heavy-duty grease for the axes of three-tonners, I was scuppered.

When the jeers had died down the colonel, a kindly if sometimes choleric man, said: "Never mind. Cook us some Scotch broth." I did so with some rather exotic garnishments, such as shredded pimento.

It happened to be extremely cold at the time up in them thar hills and the colonel, remembering his Sandhurst training, suggested thoughtfully that Scotch broth wasn't really Scotch unless it had just a drop of real Scotch in it. Had we some Scotch? Yes, sir.

Perhaps two drops rather than one? Yes, sir.

Or why not a good lacing while we were about it?

It was, if I may say so, one of the better bowls of Scotch broth. I could tell that by the way the consumers were bawling "Auld Lang Syne" in almost no time at all.

From petrol fires to lovely cookers, deep capacious sinks and the rest of the shining armory of modern kitchens. At the food exhibition at Olympia you can see the Cassandra kitchen designed by myself.

It really is rather good. But, as I said before, I am much given to bragging and prattling when it comes to the preparation of the groceries.

"POLITICS are not for people who think they are superior. The way to succeed in politics is to get in the kitchen, in among the heat, among the nasty smells. If I had to make the choice, which God forbid, I would rather have Senator Goldwater with all his faults than the sissy Pharisees who claim politics is too dirty a business for them to soil their hands with."

—Mr. Jo Grimond.

"Politics can be an obsession which knows no charity, no tolerance, and, if it is not sweetened by an overruling Christian faith, may split a group of church officers or cut a friendship."

—The Rev. John Baggs.

Inter-Bloc Trade

Revising Policy

By NORMAN CROSSLAND from Bonn

A NUMBER of West German steel firms who during the last three years have not exhibited at the Leipzig Fair in protest against the building of the Berlin Wall are said to be reconsidering their policy in view of the success at the recent fair achieved by British and French competitors.

This news followed the announcement that the British firm Humphrey and Glasgow and a French concern were co-operating to build a plant at Schwedt on the Oder for the manufacture of ammonium sulphate.

The French have granted what is described as middle-term credit of about $15,040,000 and the British $9,960,000.

With a certain amount of satisfaction the West Germans point out that though this is the biggest act of British-French co-operation in the zone so far, there are no immediate signs that either of these countries is contemplating granting long-term credit to the Soviet zone.

The growing interest of British, French and Italian firms in doing business with East Germany is causing great attention here.

It is thought that by the next Leipzig Fair in the spring a number of Western countries will have revised their credit policy towards members of the Warsaw Pact.

East German export trade with Western countries has not notably increased. Seventy-five per cent of its exports go to countries of the Eastern bloc and 12 or 13 per cent to West Germany within the sphere of international trade.

Talks are to take place in Bonn soon about a new trade agreement between West Germany and Czechoslovakia. It was thought that that Prague would make a West German renunciation of the Munich Agreement a condition for the success of the negotiations. But the Czech ministry for foreign trade was quoted as saying that the Czech government drew a clear distinction between economic and political relationships with West Germany.

The ministry said an agreement, with an exchange of trade missions, should be reached this year to provide a basis of increased trade over a period of three to five years. But a declaration that the Munich Agreement was invalid would have to be made by Bonn before relations between the two countries could become normal in every sense.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

U.S. President Harry Truman notified the world of a radical shift in the balance of power with the announcement 15 years ago today—in 1949—that Russia had exploded a nuclear device. Within weeks it became clear that the bomb was to become the principal instrument in international bargaining and that Russia would use its new advantage fully.

1846—The planet Neptune was first seen by German astronomer Johann Galle.

1939—Sigmund Freud died.

First World War: Fifty years ago today, in 1914, the Russians sank a German cruiser and two torpedo boats in the Baltic; Russia opened a new campaign to drive the Germans out of Poland.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today, in 1939, the German army command announced that the campaign in Poland was over and the Polish army defeated, captured or routed, but Warsaw still resisted complete capitulation; gasoline rationing was introduced in Britain.

Canada Student Loans Act

Student Nurses Qualify for Grants

Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital have been included on the provincial government's list of institutions of higher learning where students may qualify for loans under the Canada Student Loans Act.

The two Victoria hospitals' schools of nursing were among six hospital nursing schools in B.C. which were included on a new list of accreditations made by order-in-council Tuesday.

Other hospitals listed were Vancouver General, and St. Paul's in Vancouver; Royal Inland Hospital in Kamloops and Royal Columbian in New Westminster.

George Masters, administrator of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, said he was pleased with the move.

"We have been trying to arrange a loan fund to help our nurses through this. This will take the place of it," he said.

Pat Blewett, assistant administrator of St. Joseph's Hospital, termed the move a good one. "We are pleased to hear of it. From the point of view of the students this kind of help is always welcome."

There are 220 student nurses in Royal Jubilee Hospital and 180 students in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The cabinet earlier listed the University of British Columbia, University of Victoria and Notre Dame University in Nelson as well as a number of other Canadian and United States universities as qualifying under the act.

AMERICAN SCHOOLS

Out-of-province universities added to the list: Queen's University, Kingston; the Universities of Saskatchewan, Western Ontario and Guelph, and the North and South Alberta Institutes of Technology.

The students will also be able to use the loans at 13 U.S. colleges: University of California, Harvard, Stanford, Universities of Idaho, Maryland and Wy-

Brentwood's Romilly Knott Memorial Park was given to Central Saanich council Tuesday night.

Trustees will provide park facilities, the municipality will assume regular maintenance.

Aldermen Vanish From City Scene

There won't be a city alderman in sight for the next three days—nary a one.

They are all away to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Burnaby.

Registration for the annual meeting began Tuesday night in Burnaby High School where most of the events will take place, and continued today.

Highlight of today's program will be a speech by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, attending his first UBCM convention as a full-fledged cabinet minister.

Among the resolutions to be considered are two from Victoria, one of which has to do with curtailment of winter works benefits by the provincial government. This is expected to be one of the hot issues.

Convention Topic

Plans for the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation convention in Victoria next year will be discussed at the meeting of the Victoria Parent-Teacher Council in North Ward School auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Parents Seek End To Shift System

Sooke school trustees will consult other parents before deciding whether to break up the four-room "school within a school" at Langford as requested by a delegation of parents at the board meeting Tuesday.

Langford elementary school is on a shift system with four classes, which will go to Atkins Road school as soon as it is built, sharing space with four Langford school classes.

The delegation suggested that the shift system could be done away with by use of the gymnasium, partitioned off to make classrooms.

Lights burned late in the school board building early Wednesday morning as trustees wrestled with the problem of revising building referendum plans. Originally the idea was to place an $800,000 referendum.

But it appeared, because of the larger than expected enrolment, trustees might have to consider a $1,000,000 referendum.

Complaint Waits

Yarrows Ltd. general manager John Wallace said Tuesday he thinks a meeting will be called—touching on Friday's complaint by his shipyard, Burrard Dry Dock Co. and Allied Shipbuilding Ltd.—when the chairman of the B.C. Ferry Authority, Premier Bennett, returns to town.

He said the shipyards are not contesting the fact that Victoria Machinery Depot submitted the low bid for three new B.C. government ferries.

"The point we are questioning is that the basis of the VMD bid, at the time it was made, did not meet the engine specification requirements."

Greater Victoria school trustees have refused to provide the employees' union with a list of office employees.

E. V. Wilson, secretary of the Greater Victoria School

Board Employees Association, which covers the outside workers, had asked the board for an up-to-date list of employees in connection with efforts to organize office staff of the board.

Trustees rejected the request for the list, feeling employees are entitled to privacy.

A Christmas decoration which can be produced locally for display in downtown Victoria, is being considered by the Chamber of Commerce retail merchants' group.

The decoration, made of metal discs to be hung from lamp posts, will replace the trees which have been displayed for the last few years and have suffered damage.

Members elected John Cunningham as chairman to succeed Hugh Francis, and Roy Taylor, as vice-chairman.

Frank Findlay, 3022 Millgrove, was in satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's Hospital early today after his car fell on him.

He was working on the front end under the car when a jack and the vehicle landed on his shoulder.

Beefed-Up Leafs To Tackle Boston

Victoria Maple Leafs will have a National Hockey League look tomorrow night when they play Boston Bruins (at 8) at Memorial Arena in the first of three pre-season games for the new Victoria club.

To fill lineup gaps caused by the late arrival of several players being sent to Victoria, the parent Toronto Maple Leafs are flying forwards Billy Harris and Ron Stewart in for the game.

Although coach Rudy Pilous would dearly love to keep both players, there was no indication that their stay would be for longer than Thursday. But there has been a slight hint that it may be possible that Harris would eventually line up with the Victoria club.

In any event, the arrival of Harris and Stewart will give Pilous enough forwards to ice three lines against the Bruins.

Harris and Stewart will probably play together and Pilous hopes that rookie-forward Gene Rebelatto will be here in time to fill out on right wing.

COLLEGE MAN

Rebelatto has been sent to Victoria by Toronto and Pilous says he expects that he will play the season here. A 21-year-old, 175-pounder from Sault Ste. Marie, he played previously with Michigan Tech, one of the college powers in the U.S. He can play centre or a wing.

Pilous watched Rebelatto at the Toronto training camp and feels that the youngster will be a big help this season.

Centre John Slevner, here since Sunday, will have "Cowboy" Bill Flett and rookie Rolfe

Willcox as wingers while Milan Mareetta will make the plays for Larry Keenan and Dick Lamoureux on the other line.

Lamoureux suffered a nasty head cut yesterday when he came in contact with the ice after a bodycheck but is expected to be playing.

Although a late touchdown would have won it for Calgary, it is a deceiving fact. The Lions almost completely dominated the game with their superb defence.

Stampede managed only six first downs on a total offence of 59 yards rushing and 78 yards passing, 50 of the latter on a pass from fullback Lovell Coleman to flanker Bobby Taylor late in the second quarter.

Coleman got only 45 yards in 13 carries, just enough to regain the WFC rushing lead from Ed Buchanan of Saskatchewan. Day completed 2 of 12 passes, Coleman one of two with the other intercepted.

JUST TWICE

Coleman's pass put the ball on the B.C. 25-yard line, the first of two times the Stampede managed to scrimmage the ball in the B.C. half of the field. The only other time they made any penetration they got only to the 48-yard line on an eight-yard, first-down pass. They were thrown for a loss on the next play and had to punt.

Stampede got their only points against the B.C. offence, turning the tide of play momentarily at the start of the second quarter with action on their 21-yard line when defensive-back Jerry Keeling ran 98 yards for a major score after Joe Kapp fumbled.

KAPP GRABBED

Kapp went back to pass on a second-and-goal situation, was grabbed by the ankles by Willie Harris as he started his throw. The ball hit the ground, Keeling scooped it up and had a 20-yard start on Willie Fleming, who caught him just as he crossed the goal line.

MAJOR WEAPONS

Their main weapons were the fine quarterbacking of Kapp, the bulldozing blasts of rookie-fullback Bob Swift and a couple of truly spectacular catches by the sore-loined Pat Claridge.

WITH THE STAMPE

With the Stampede lined up defensively to stop Fleming and Kapp's long passes, Kapp exploited a weakness in the middle of their defence by giving Swift quite a workout.

FINE BLOCKS

The 20-year-old find, often getting a start through some fine blocking, dragged Stampede all over the place as he jammed his way for 156 yards in 27 carries after opening the game with 20 smashing yards on a screen pass.

LIONS GOT THEIR POINTS

Lions got their points the hard way, continually getting within scoring range only to be stopped by a determined Calgary defence and have to go to Kempf's toe for their points.

HITS POST

First downs on their first four scrimmage plays got the Lions close but they were stopped 27 yards out, settled for a point when Kempf's three-point try hit his goal post.

AFTER KEMP'S RUN

After Kempf's run, an amazing catch by Claridge for a 37-yard gain threatened the Calgary goal again but again the Stampede held and Kempf got it to 4-7 with a 35-yard placement. Lions were stopped still again before the end of the second quarter and Kempf got to 5-7 with a 36-yard miss.

LIONS GOT WITHIN FOUR YARDS

Lions got within four yards the first time they got the ball in the third quarter but with third and one on the four-yard line, coach Dave Skrien, to the obvious disgust of his players, sent in Kempf to split the up-rights for 8-7.

STAMPE STOPPED THE LIONS

Stampede stopped the Lions on their one-yard line, taking over on downs. Then the Lions rattled back within six yards before Kempf came in again for his third three-point and 11-7.

CLARIDGE'S SECOND GREAT CATCH

Claridge's second great catch got something started again late in the fourth quarter. Again the Stampede held and Kempf came in to get his 12th point.

First downs: 25; Yards rushing: 78; Yards passing: 50; Passes made: 12; Passes intercepted: 2; Punt: 1; Punt average: 41.8; Punt return: 1; Punt return average: 4.3; Penalties: 4; Penalties yards: 2/29.

Last night's news: B.C. LIONS 13 at Calgary
Next games: Saturday: Hamilton at B.C. Lions; Edmonton at Saskatchewan; Montreal at Ottawa.

Stampede managed only six first downs on a total offence of 59 yards rushing and 78 yards passing, 50 of the latter on a pass from fullback Lovell Coleman to flanker Bobby Taylor late in the second quarter.

Coleman got only 45 yards in 13 carries, just enough to regain the WFC rushing lead from Ed Buchanan of Saskatchewan. Day completed 2 of 12 passes, Coleman one of two with the other intercepted.

Coleman's pass put the ball on the B.C. 25-yard line, the first of two times the Stampede managed to scrimmage the ball in the B.C. half of the field. The only other time they made any penetration they got only to the 48-yard line on an eight-yard, first-down pass. They were thrown for a loss on the next play and had to punt.

Stampede got their only points against the B.C. offence, turning the tide of play momentarily at the start of the second quarter with action on their 21-yard line when defensive-back Jerry Keeling ran 98 yards for a major score after Joe Kapp fumbled.

Kapp went back to pass on a second-and-goal situation, was grabbed by the ankles by Willie Harris as he started his throw. The ball hit the ground, Keeling scooped it up and had a 20-yard start on Willie Fleming, who caught him just as he crossed the goal line.

It made the score 7-1 but the Lions, getting stronger as the game went on, methodically went about their recovery.

Their main weapons were the fine quarterbacking of Kapp, the bulldozing blasts of rookie-fullback Bob Swift and a couple of truly spectacular catches by the sore-loined Pat Claridge.

With the Stampede lined up defensively to stop Fleming and Kapp's long passes, Kapp exploited a weakness in the middle of their defence by giving Swift quite a workout.

The 20-year-old find, often getting a start through some fine blocking, dragged Stampede all over the place as he jammed his way for 156 yards in 27 carries after opening the game with 20 smashing yards on a screen pass.

Lions got their points the hard way, continually getting within scoring range only to be stopped by a determined Calgary defence and have to go to Kempf's toe for their points.

HITS POST
First downs on their first four scrimmage plays got the Lions close but they were stopped 27 yards out, settled for a point when Kempf's three-point try hit his goal post.

AFTER KEMP'S RUN
After Kempf's run, an amazing catch by Claridge for a 37-yard gain threatened the Calgary goal again but again the Stampede held and Kempf got it to 4-7 with a 35-yard placement. Lions were stopped still again before the end of the second quarter and Kempf got to 5-7 with a 36-yard miss.

Age Records Also Fell

Presence of the Canadian Olympic Swim Team at the Pre-Olympic Open and age group swim meet held at the Crystal Garden pool overshadowed the performances of other B.C. swimmers in the age group finals.

Sandy Stephens Improves

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Former Montreal, Alouette and Toronto Argonaut quarterback Sandy Stephens, who suffered multiple injuries in a car accident Sunday night, was taken off the critical list Tuesday.

Winter Works

Jobless Match To Fuse

By KEN JOHNSON

Thirty-five unemployed maintenance workers from Oak Bay may touch off the explosive winter works policy issue today at the UBCM conference in Burnaby.

For the 35 recently-laid-off municipal workers may not get their temporary jobs back this winter—because of the provincial government's new ruling. The ruling cuts out the previous provincial 25 per cent wage-sharing grant.

PREPARES PROTEST

On the eve of the conference—municipal officials and leaders from all over B.C. will be there—Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox was preparing a protest against the ruling.

In the past, 50 per cent of winter works employees' salaries was provided by the federal government and 25 per cent by the provincial.

WIPE OUT

In the case of welfare recipients, the provincial government provided 50 per cent.

Under the new ruling, the 25 per cent from provincial level is wiped out.

This way the provincial government hoped that welfare cases—those who had been on welfare for a minimum three months—would get preference.

KEPT IN SUMMER

Municipal engineer Geoffrey White said Tuesday that most of the 35 workers had been originally employed for the winter works program of 1963 and kept on as extra summer staff.

"Whether or not we will get any of them back this winter remains to be seen," said Mr. White.

"But there has been no promise or undertaking that they will, from us or anyone else."

SMALL EXCHANGE

Said Reeve Cox: "I'm sure this example is a small one compared with those of other areas. But if I get a chance at the conference, I'll have a lot to say about this matter."

"I have already protested most vehemently to the minister."

ILL-TIMED

He said the government's announcement of the new ruling was ill-timed.

"Our budget had already been prepared when the information was passed to us," he said. "Plans for our winter works program had been formulated months before."

WORK UNLIKELY

"It's a pity the government couldn't make up its mind before budget time."

"As for the 35 workers, I can't see how they can get their jobs back unless we decide to employ those who won't qualify for the grant."

University a Partnership Taylor Tells Students

University of Victoria President Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor addressed new and old students for the first time at a noon meeting Tuesday in the Gordon Head gymnasium.

Dr. Taylor encouraged students to take full advantage of all that the University of Victoria has to offer—a "distinguished" faculty, superior student-faculty relations, a library with one of the highest volume-to-student ratios in Canada, good student government, a "free, responsible student newspaper," a cultured community and a beautiful setting.

"Whether or not we will get any of them back this winter remains to be seen," said Mr. White.

Hydro Doubts It—But...

Will Passenger Loss Wipe Out Fare Gain?

By IAN STREET

Heavy loss of passengers that could result from the proposed doubling of bus fares in Greater Victoria could be at least partially offset without abandonment of existing routes, Public Utilities Commission was told Tuesday.

B.C. Hydro experts agreed under cross-examination by municipalities' counsel T. P. O'Grady that the passenger loss resulting from introduction of the new fares could amount to 30 per cent or higher, but they said this was most unlikely.

S. J. Sigmundson, manager of Hydro's transit division, said if riding dropped off by as much as the municipalities feared, the solution might involve scrapping the present Greater Victoria transit system and replacing it with an entirely new one.

This would involve laying out a new system of routes, the transit chief said, "not as close to each other and with less frequent service."

NOT AT PRESENT

Mr. Sigmundson said Hydro wasn't at present proposing to reorganize the transit system in an attempt to effect economies because of the attitude of municipalities towards changes in route and service cuts.

"It is my impression that it would be most difficult to get the concurrence and consent of the municipalities," said Mr. Sigmundson. "It would be an unpopular move and bound to meet with resistance, perhaps more than is now directed at the fare increase."

He added, however, that "no reorganization carried out now would bring (Greater Victoria's transit system) near the break-even point on operations without at least the increase in fares now contemplated."

SYSTEMS LOST

Mr. Sigmundson told the commission that some North American cities only slightly smaller than Victoria had in the past decade lost the metropolitan transit system entirely because it had become so unprofitable.

This trend hasn't yet developed in Canada, he said, though some parts of metro areas have lost transit service.

Earlier, A. C. Manson, manager of Hydro's rates and costs department, told the commission that even higher fares than those requested were clearly needed to break even on transit services.

DOUBLE FARES

But the proposed doubling of fares was much as they dared to handle in one increase, he said.

Mr. Manson agreed that the fare application now before the commission was "unprecedented" and said he had no knowledge of any of comparable size elsewhere in North America.

'QUITE REMOTE'

He said it was possible that a drop in passengers as the result of a large fare increase could offset any additional revenues, thus leaving the bus system worse off than before. But he said this possibility was "quite remote."

Realization on Hydro's part that effects of the fare increase, which cannot be determined until it is introduced, could exceed expectations resulted in the present application which doesn't cover all requirements, he said.

The hearing continues at 10 a.m. in the Victoria Law Courts.

Victoria's Streets Getting Over-Signed?

Fears that Victoria streets are becoming "oversigned" were expressed at a parks and traffic committee meeting Tuesday. "It's getting to the point where drivers are taking their eyes off pedestrians and other automobiles in order to read the signs," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

Issue arose when traffic supervisor Kenneth Reid demonstrated a colored sign which, he said, would be used in conjunction with the plan to color code parking meter posts. Red posts will indicate 12-minute meters, yellow, 30 minutes, blue, one hour and green, two hours.

MP Invites Flag Designs

Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton is looking for ideas for a new flag. The House of Commons flag committee is now sitting, he said, and is prepared to consider any new designs submitted before Oct. 1.

Any person who has a design to be considered should send it, with any accompanying or supporting material, to Mr. Chatterton at the House of Commons in Ottawa before Oct. 1.

"I shall see that it is placed before the committee," he said. No postage is required.

B.C. Favors Inclusion Of Indian Lands in Union

By JACK FRY

The municipal affairs department favors the merger of Indian reserve lands as well as the View Royal panhandle with the Municipality of Esquimalt, it was learned Monday night.

Esquimalt council studied a letter from Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister J. Everett Brown advising that an Esquimalt merger petition signed by a majority of panhandle residents "would appear to satisfy the requirements of the Municipal Act."

"I would recommend, however, and my minister concurs with me in this, that the Indian band council be approached so that if at all possible the reserve lands are also included within the municipality," his letter said.

Meanwhile, View Royal residents were drawing up battle lines for a civil war, with "no man's land" situated at the Old Island Highway - Craigflower Road intersection.

Council received from C. G. Blogg, 2771 Shoreline Drive, a copy of a 27-signature petition sent to Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell asking that Christie Point Peninsula not be included in any merger.

"Residents of the provincial territory lying to the northwest of the Island Highway" want no part in any merger, his letter said.

Earlier, View Royal fire protection district chairman W. R. Preece had asked Mr. Campbell for assurance that tax money owed by panhandle residents to the year 1971 will still be paid if a merger does take place.

Municipal clerk Jack Allan told council he was advised by a municipal affairs department official that Esquimalt would be required to pay the district any money still owing—and that panhandle residents would then have fire protection from both Esquimalt and View Royal.

Another new twist in the issue is the fact that several of the residents in the area affected have changed their stands since the panhandle-Esquimalt merger was first proposed.

"I can't make head or tail of it," said Mr. Allan, who suggested the whole issue be tossed back to the department of municipal affairs.

Council approved of acting reeve James Bryant's suggestion that: "I think it would be wise in sending this back... there is no particular rush... it will take a lot of serious consideration on the part of council."

Mini-Metro

Free Choice Emphasized

Mini-metro is not a scheme to trap unorganized territories and municipalities into amalgamation, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell reiterated Tuesday night.

Speaking to the Victoria Association of Women Electors at the Public Library, Mr. Campbell said those involved in any proposed joint services board had a free choice as to whether to adopt the scheme or not.

He said unorganized territories need not form a municipality to participate.

There would be representation by election on any board that might be formed.

Mr. Campbell explained the mini-metro system would link existing boards for various services in a co-ordinated manner.

It would not have the power to impose or raise taxation like the metro system in Toronto or Winnipeg.

Metchosin Facing Zone Deadline

Metchosin is in danger of becoming a dumping ground for undesirable forms of development unless residents take an interest in proposed zoning for the area, John Page said Tuesday.

Mr. Page, Metchosin member of the advisory planning commission, has called a meeting for 8 p.m. tonight in Metchosin Hall for the purpose of forming a ratepayers' association.

"The proposed zoning map on the area is due about Oct. 15," he said. "Once we have the zoning it's too late to squawk about it."

With the development of the district proceeding at an ever-increasing rate, zoning about to be introduced and the formation of the mini-metro joint services board, he said a strong ratepayers' association would give residents a voice and some control in the affairs of the community.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am 20 and have been married four years. My husband (who is 26) has been having an affair with a 16-year-old girl. She used to sit with our children but I stopped calling her when I suspected something was going on.

When I found love letters from her in my husband's shirt pocket (she had mailed them to his office) I telephoned and asked her to come over for a talk.

She seemed eager to do the right thing and promised never to see my husband again. Well, she is seeing him, almost every night, and I don't know what to do about it. I can't get a straight sentence out of him. He is the world's biggest liar.

Divorce is out of the question. Our religion allows only one marriage and this is—lousy or not.

The girl is underage and I'd like to know if I can do anything legal to break this up.—CORN-SILK.

Dear Cornsilk: Since the girl is underage you can have your husband put in jail. But what would you have then, besides a husband in jail?

The girl is the same age you were when you married the heel. If you'd like to write a letter for other 16-year-olds who think they are in love and want to get married I'd be happy to print it. For now, your best bet is to meet the competition with the type of ammunition you think would be most effective.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widow in my early 50's. My father-in-law died recently and in his will he named me as an heir along with his two daughters.

The daughters say the will is not valid because a daughter-in-law does not have equal rights according to the law and I'd better not try to "horn in."

When my father-in-law was alive he came to me with his mending, his letters to be written and fresh berries for the pie he wanted me to bake. He felt very comfortable in my home and told me repeatedly that his daughters were good girls but their husbands made it plain that they didn't want "the old man around too much."

My sisters-in-law are urging me to sign papers forfeiting my share of the estate "to save the embarrassment of a court fight" which they say I will surely lose.

I am not hard up financially, but neither are they. The tension is getting me down. What should I do?—NOT MONEY HUNGRY BUT WANTING FAIRNESS.

Dear Not Money Hungry: Put the matter in the hands of a lawyer. I am reasonably certain he will tell you that your sisters-in-law are all wet.

In the meantime play dead and don't sign anything. Toots.

Dear Ann Landers: I recently attended a wedding where the mother of the bride wore a two-piece white lace dress. I noticed in the newspaper that at the Goldwater wedding the attendants wore white silk organza gowns.

I always thought it was improper for anyone but the bride to wear white at a wed-

Husbands May Not Agree . . .

Women Too Practical with Money

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—A hubby who's just paid for the wife's latest silly hat won't agree.

Most women tend to be too practical with money.

They like to invest—in a sure thing. They'll take a chance if guaranteed they won't lose any money.

That's the consensus of insurance, investment and banking experts reporting in the current National Business Woman, official publication of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

The experts, discouraging on money management for women, chided the nation's female—who control 70 per cent of the personal assets in the United States—for not being bolder and more sophisticated in the handling of their investments.

Take insurance as one example. A modest policy to cover burial expenses used to be the order of the day. Or no policy at all.

Janice Greider, associate counsel for the State Farm Insurance Company, indicated that this attitude is passé.

"Now that so many women hold positions of responsibility and themselves have dependents, it is as important that they have adequate insurance protection as it is for the wage-earning man."

A spokesman for the banking industry called for women to put aside at least 10 per cent of their funds for an increase in their personal assets.

Ralph Mittendorf, of the First National Bank of Washington, D.C., said, in fact, that he is not adverse to intelligent borrowing as a means of increasing assets.

Mittendorf complained that women would rather sell securities in time of financial need than borrow and keep their investments intact.

"They don't look at the long-term picture, with regard to taxes, and may be forced into taking a gain which would not be to their tax advantage in order to pay off an indebtedness," he said.

Mrs. Julia Montgomery Walsh, general partner in the brokerage firm Ferris and Company, agreed.

"The first thing women have to learn in an investment program," she said, "is to look at the financial pictures as a whole rather than to isolate these surplus funds that they feel they can save or invest."

Investment programs must take into account the possibility of inflation, stressing the need for women to learn about various "dollar" investments, she cautioned.

Many women, for example, are afraid that this type of investment can go down as well as up.

Mrs. Walsh urges such women to think of the long-term growth of the nation, rather than get financial cold feet.

Plan Party At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS — Arbutus Chapter IOOE met recently at the home of Mrs. George Robinson with Regent Mrs. K. V. Lopatecki presiding. The resignation of Mrs. R. H. Purdy, educational secretary, was received with regret, and Mrs. William Latta agreed to act as temporary secretary. Mrs. Purdy has left the district.

Mrs. Carl Mowat, vice-regent, reported that the recipient of the chapter's scholarship, Miss Gale Burgess, had requested it be held for her until next year, when she will enter UBC.

Tentative plans were discussed for a coffee party, Oct. 23, in the Legion hall. Co-conveners will be Mrs. Latta and Mrs. Benjamin Hickling. Mrs. Robert McBride will convene the white elephant stall.

The hostess was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Carl Mowat and Mrs. E. G. English.

Banff Wedding Trip For Honeymoon Pair

Now on a wedding trip to Banff and the Prairie provinces are Mr. and Mrs. John Trevor Tyler, who were married Saturday evening in Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Patricia Bay.

The bride is Heather Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glyn Adams of Ladner, formerly of Sidney, B.C. The groom is the son of Mrs. J. Lewis and the late Mr. W. Tyler, Central Saanich.

Canon F. C. Vaughan-Birch officiated at the double ring ceremony at which Mrs. Mimi Robertson was soloist. Organist was Mrs. Glen Hale.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length dress of white tulle with overlay of sheer nylon accented with fine lace and pearls. The slightly-flared skirt featured a lace-trimmed panel at the back. She wore a tiny pearl crown to hold her chapel veil and carried a cascade of yellow roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. J. Tait was matron of honor for her sister, and Mrs. G. Buckborough was bridesmaid. They were dressed alike in gold shantung with broad overskirts, and wore bows of gold shantung and net in their hair. Their bouquets were of gold and bronze chrysanthemums.

Little flower girl was Sharon Tyler, niece of the groom. She wore a full-skirted frock of pale green shantung with a circle of pale yellow ribbon roses in her hair. Her colonial bouquet was of pale yellow roses and chrysanthemums.

Mr. Ronald Tyler was best man for his brother, and ushers were Mr. Robert McLeod and Mr. Bruce Greenway. Mr. Harold Luesley proposed the toast to the bride at a reception at the Legion Hall on Mills Road.

As the couple left later on their wedding trip, the bride wore a suit of French blue wool with figured blouse, a beige pillbox hat and accessories, and a gardenia on corsage.

The newlyweds plan to live in Central Saanich.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Luesley, with Helen, Joan and Bruce, from Abbotsford; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bennett and Joan, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. D. Lewis, Comox; and Mr. Jack Lewis, Kamloops.

EXCLUSIVE! Beatles in Tahiti

A bombshell! A Beatles exclusive! When John and Cynthia Lennon, along with George Harrison and girl friend Patty Boyd, slipped away in Tahiti they found more than palm trees and blue lagoons. What they did not know was that the "cash-interpreter" on their rented sailboat was a Canadian writer-photographer.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Brand New Radio Career For Great-Grandmother

TORONTO (CP)—Minnie Miller of St. Catharines, Ont., a 74-year-old great-grandmother, has embarked on a new career—reading radio commercials for a firm that manufactures cake and pastry flour.

Not only has Mrs. Miller taped 14 commercials, she is getting her name and a recipe for her favorite banana cake printed on the bags in which the flour is sold across Canada.

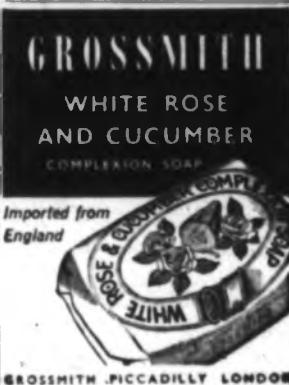

Mrs. Miller's career began after the company decided to seek a common-sense little old lady skilled at baking to do its commercials. Her grandson,

Terry O'Malley, works for the advertising firm involved and thought she would be a natural choice for the job.

Mrs. Miller admitted she never paid attention to commercials on the radio before she got this job. "Listen to them all now," she said.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRIS

Whenever an unfamiliar plant is grown and you are not too sure just what kind of care to give it, it is always a good idea to look it up in a book and find out what part of the world it came from originally.

Check what weather and soil conditions prevail in that part of the world and try to match them as closely as may be possible in your garden.

Our modern tuberous begonia has a family tree as complicated as that of the Hapsburg family, but the main blood line stems from a wild begonia whose natural habitat is the upper slopes of the Andes mountains in South America where they are kept cool during the summer by almost continual mists and light rains. As in most hillside locations, drainage is sharp—puddles never linger on mountain slopes. Following the rainy season, an almost rainless period ensues, during which the tops die down from drought and the tubers go dormant until awakened by next year's rains. Tuberous begonias have performed exceptionally well this year, and for this I imagine we can thank the same cool, damp weather that ruined so many vacations—weather similar to that in the high reaches of the Andes.

Our job now is to create the conditions that put the bulbs safely to sleep in their South American home. You will notice that the tops of the wild plants are killed slowly by drought rather than cut down overnight by a sharp ground frost. To this end, the outdoor plants should be dug up carefully with a good ball of soil around the roots, and set into shallow boxes—seed flats are very good for this purpose.

Any flowers remaining on the plants should be picked off, also any unduly large leaves.

The boxes of plants are placed on newspapers on our basement floor in a spot where they get a little sunshine from one of the cellar windows.

Temperature is not important at this stage—cool or warm, it doesn't matter—but good ventilation is a must.

I lost a fine batch of bulbs one year when, in my ignorance, I put them in a stuffy cupboard under the cellar stairs.

The plants are given no water at all. The soil around the roots dries out slowly, then the leaves turn brown and fall.

The stems are the last to wither, for these are thick and sappy, but they should never be cut away however long they take to die back.

When completely dry and withered, the stems will part from the tubers at a touch, leaving only a small scar. At this point the bulbs may be cleaned up and placed in cool storage. All soil should be brushed off the tubers, and it is a good idea to dust them with any all-purpose garden dust you may happen to have on hand.

For storage, I prefer to bury my bulbs in a box of peat moss or vermiculite, and this is kept in a corner of the basement where the temperature is low enough to prevent premature sprouting—ideally around 45 degrees.

Sidney First U.S. Negro President

NEW YORK (NANA)—Of course Sidney Polter is being touted to play the U.S. senator who becomes the first Negro U.S. president in The Man by Profligate author Irving Wallace. And of course he will say yes when the picture is made.

The E.H. Wallace, who never seem to stop travelling—Cambodia, Yugoslavia, Crete, London—you name it, they have been there. Well, now they are back in New York, and if their new play, Luv, is a hit, they can unpack and stick around for awhile.

Wherever you look at Metro is joy—there's Yvette Mi-mieux in Joy in the Morning, and Jane Fonda to star in Joy House. Seems we're in for a cycle of joy.

It's director Vincent Minnelli who is doing those paintings that Elizabeth Taylor is supposed to paint in The Sandpiper.

And they had better be good. Elizabeth's father, Francis Taylor, is the art expert... Someone gave Jane Fonda a $14,000 house trailer and Jane has left the elegant shelter of sister Gypsy Rose Lee, and hitches her wagon to a car and has been sleeping all over California. She will be back in New York soon for her TV show.

Anna Maria Alberghetti and groom Claudio Guzman made a sudden decision to honeymoon in Japan, after the Honolulu trip had been exchanged for a working assignment in New York immediately after the marriage. Claudio and Anna were in the big city for a week while he directed a segment of the Patty Duke show. They then planned to visit Bermuda. "But I didn't want to share our vacation with Cleo and Dora (the hurricanes), so we decided on Japan." A sleepy bride told me when I awakened her too early yesterday morning. With a stopover in Honolulu, of course.

'Shut Up!' Charlotte Told

OTTAWA (CP)—Alderman Lionel O'Connor got some backing from members of city council when he told Mayor Charlotte Whitton to "shut your mouth for a while. You talk, talk, talk, until we're so tired we're sick of it."

Council then voted down the mayor's request to apply for loans to put up the city hall extension.

LONDON—Princess Anne, 14, daughter of Queen Elizabeth, returned from Aberdeen, Scotland, preparatory to starting school again at Benenden, England.

GALVESTON, Tex.—Elmer Donald Bates, who is not a fireman, hopped into one of the city's huge pumper trucks, and drove it, siren screaming and red lights flashing, to a nearby tavern. Later he told police, who charged him with felony theft, vagrancy and drunkenness, that the keys were in the truck and he was "too tired to walk."

BURNABY (CP)—An official of the British Columbia Alcoholism Foundation says Canadians have made liquor a god. "That's why I can't see any real hope for a fast solution to the alcoholism problem facing the community today," Harold Huggins told a service club.

Hydro's Fare Stand Will Prove Costly

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver's Mayor Rathie says B.C. Hydro's refusal to consider an interim transit fare increase here and in Victoria is only going to cost them money.

He told an interviewer Monday that 10 Greater Vancouver and Victoria municipalities were willing to give Hydro a break by proposing the interim bus hike but they are just as ready to fight the increase proposed by Hydro.

INTERIM HIKE OUT

The provincially-owned utility is asking the Public Utilities Commission for a fare increase from the present 15 cents cash to 25 cents cash or five tokens for $1.

PUC chairman Dr. H. F. Angus last week suggested an interim hike but Hydro officials told the commission sitting in Victoria Monday that it is not prepared to consider this.

Dr. Angus indicated that any final PUC decision on the bus fare question could be delayed until next January.

GIVES TIME

"That just gives us time to prove our case," commented Mayor Rathie.

The case is being prepared by U.S. transit expert John Curtin of Philadelphia. He has already charged that Hydro inflated by about $3,000,000 its reported losses of $3,000,000 in the 1963-64 fiscal year.

Comedian Pursues A Myth

By IAN STREET

An Italian comedian and a heavy of Swedish beauty make this week's offering at the Fox Cinema good light entertainment.

To Bed or Not to Bed is based upon the myth, which naturally has widest currency in Italy, that all blonde Nordic beauties are ready to throw themselves into the arms of the first hot-blooded Latin they lay eyes on.

Alberto Sordi, playing an Italian from a small provincial town whose business takes him to Stockholm in mid-winter, discovers that Swedish women certainly do enjoy a unique relationship with their men.

But he learns the hard way not to take literally all those magazine articles about Swedes.

In the process he is led on a naked chase through the snow and introduced to the wild custom of "waltzing" on ice in automobiles.

The girls are all lovely and shots made on location in Stockholm show that beautiful city in guise that's unfamiliar to most tourists.

NDP Plugs Reform Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The New Democrats, apparently hoping to forestall any one-sided action by the government on parliamentary reform, launched a public campaign Tuesday with concrete proposals for a more orderly conduct of parliamentary business.

Party leader T. C. Douglas, flanked by most of the party's 17 MPs, outlined a 10-point reform program which includes adoption of a general timetable for Parliament within which the parties could negotiate allocation of debating time.

He told a press conference that the aim is to strike a balance between full debate on legislative measures and the need to get public business done.

PROPOSALS DISTRIBUTED

The New Democratic proposals, embodying many of the suggestions advanced by party whip Stanley Knowles to a Commons committee on rules reform, are being distributed to all MPs, newspapers, broadcasting outlets and periodicals in an effort to spark public discussion.

They follow closely on statements by Prime Minister Pearson that unless the parliamentary reform committee, stalled over recommendations about dividing up debating time, acts soon the government may have to act on its own.

MAY UNDERCUT RIGHTS

Mr. Pearson wasn't explicit about the kind of action but New Democrats say they fear any government proposals to change parliamentary rules may be too one-sided and undercut essential opposition rights.

The 10-point rules plan also appeared to be aimed at getting

Three of the cars rejected were RCMP patrol vehicles.

FOREIGN INVESTMENT LIMIT: 25 PER CENT

Low Ceiling Ahead

For Outsiders

Gordon

The Proposals

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of Finance Minister Gordon's proposals announced in the Commons Tuesday night:

- Future limit of 25 per cent foreign ownership of shares in banks and federally-incorporated insurance, trust and mortgage loan companies.
- Individual foreign ownership limited to 10 per cent.
- Existing foreign shareholdings not affected.
- Insurance, trust and mortgage loan companies allowed to invest up to 25 per cent of assets in certain common stocks instead of present 15 per cent.
- Mortgage lending limit raised to 75 per cent of appraised property value from present two-thirds.
- Power of insurance companies to invest in real estate would be "broadened."

Critics Praise Investment Curbs

OTTAWA (CP) — Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), a financial critic for the Conservative opposition, Tuesday night commended the government's move to put new curbs on foreign investment in Canada's banks, life insurance companies, trust companies and loan companies.

He told the Commons after the government plan had been outlined by Finance Minister Gordon that generally the Conservatives believe this is a move in the right direction. He said the move originally was started by former Conservative Finance Minister Donald Fleming in 1957.

Mr. Lambert said the minister's statement contained wide-sweeping implications which would have to be studied carefully by the opposition before further comment could be made.

ENFORCEMENT DIFFICULT

Colin Cameron (Newfoundland—St. John's), NDP financial critic, commended Mr. Gordon for the basic aim of the legislation but expressed fears it would be difficult to enforce and police it.

Restrictions on corporate voting rights might prove almost impossible for the federal government to supervise.

He urged Mr. Gordon to revive his dormant proposal for a Canada development fund, which would channel pension plan reserves and other public capital into the private sector to replace foreign investment.

DEBUT SOURCE

Gilles Giguere (Lapointe), Creditiste financial critic, said the legislation will dry up an important source of investment capital. This source would have to be replaced by the federal government or Canadian investors or the economy would suffer.

Bert Leboe (SC—Carleton Place) did not comment on the announcement, saying he preferred to wait for the detailed bill. He expressed the hope, however, that the forthcoming Bank Act revision will give banks the right to offer first mortgages.

Secret's Out—Russians Join NATO

LONDON (AP) — Soviet planes, surface ships and submarines shadowed a North Atlantic Alliance naval exercise Tuesday, but Western commanders said the Russians would be more of a help than a hindrance.

NATO naval sources had said Monday they hoped to keep the exact area of the Atlantic exercise "team work" a secret from the Russians in order to prevent the pre-positioning of Soviet observer ships.

No announcement was made of where the exercise would be conducted until most of the warships of seven participating North Atlantic Pact countries were out to sea. Full radio silence was observed.

But naval sources reported Tuesday that Soviet planes, surface ships and submarines were shadowing the NATO manoeuvres between Iceland and Norway.

Two Crusader jet fighters from the U.S. aircraft carrier Independence intercepted two Soviet Bison bombers and escorted them out of the area. The U.S. and Soviet pilots waved to each other as they flew side by side.

"The Russians can tag along. If they want to learn something about operating a carrier they could learn a lot from watching the Independence, but they don't have carriers."

The navies of the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Norway are taking part in the exercise which continues until Oct. 2.

Yukon Official Says:

Let's Talk Over This Merger Plan

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — A member of the Yukon territorial council says the council should be "assembled at once" to discuss a proposal by Premier Bennett that the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and B.C. merge into one province.

"The council should be assembled at once so that we can discuss this and other ideas that have come out of the Alaska-B.C.-Yukon conference meeting," said Kenneth Thompson.

A poll of Whitehorse residents by the Star reported strong support for the proposal.

Meanwhile in Vancouver, Erik Nielsen, Conservative MP for Yukon Territory, termed the Bennett proposal "harmful."

"Very few people—in fact hardly anyone—is taking the proposal seriously," he said in an interview.

ATLIN, B.C. (CP) — A helicopter pilot from Saanich

watched in horror Monday as a single-engine Beaver aircraft curled into a spin and carried four men to death in Trapp Lake, 90 miles southwest of here.

Pilot William Dickson of Terrace, B.C., was killed, along with three passengers, one of whom was identified as E. J. (Ted) Powell, about 25, who came to Canada two years ago from Rhodesia.

A third victim was identified as Robin Gurn of Crystal Brook, South Australia.

Name of the fourth victim was withheld.

Rod McRae, spokesman for Julian Mining Company of Vancouver, which employed the three passengers, said helicopter pilot Bill Clifford of 5206 Old West Saanich Road witnessed the crash.

The Beaver had just taken off from the lake, about 320 miles northwest of Prince Rupert, B.C. It climbed to about 800 feet, then fell into a spin and crashed into the water.

Clifford flew his helicopter over the crash scene but was unable to pick up any of the victims.

Watching from the shore were Clifford's mechanic, Bert Fallman of Vancouver, and mining company personnel Bob Adamson, Joseph Roscoe and Norman McLeod.

Clifford is a pilot for Vancouver Island Helicopters Ltd.

A Red in Schoolhouse!

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative MP Ken More said in the Commons Tuesday night many Saskatchewan parents are worried that a visiting Russian professor of economics at the University of Saskatchewan will spread communism among the student body.

Mr. More, MP for Regina City, said he has received several letters from persons who were perplexed and "aroused" to learn that Prof. A. B. Nicolae of Moscow State University will teach economics at the Regina campus this academic year.

He asked the government to explain the purpose of inviting the Russian professor to Regina. What would be the orientation of the Russian's lectures?

"How far can he go?" asked Mr. More.

"He's going to deal with adolescent minds."

The government should give assurances that Prof. Nicolae would not spread Communist ideology and that national security would be fully protected.

Stanley Haidasz, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Martin, said the University of Saskatchewan took the initiative late last year and asked Soviet authorities to recommend a Russian who would be visiting professor at Regina for the 1964-65 academic year.

He said the external affairs department approved the project as part of the cultural exchange program in effect between Canada and Russia for several years. There had been no reason to deny a visa to Prof. Nicolae, 41.

Mr. Ritha, who was married and was an employee of the Nanaimo falling firm of Fedge and Gunderson, died when a log he was bucking rolled over him.

Sealer Reg. Logan, who first heard the victim's screams, led fellow workers in a vain effort to lift the log before he died. The men put the body on a stretcher and carried it in relays 2,000 feet up a mountain to an ambulance.

NANAIMO — A 15-year-old Nanaimo boy raised to adult magistrate's court Tuesday from juvenile court was sentenced to 16 months at Oakalla prison farm.

Bruce Michael Bird pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and theft. He took a diamond ring and a wallet from the home of Raymond Lawrence at 221 Pine. Another juvenile involved in the theft was sent to Brannen Lake school.

NORTH COWICHAN — The $200,000 Queen of Angels school at Tzouhalem and Maple Bay roads, opened to pupils early this month, will be open to parents and the general public Sunday. Sisters of St. Ann's and lay teachers will attend.

The school is the first stage of a 20-year development plan to cost $750,000. Other items will be a school auditorium, a church and a rectory.

GANGES — Members of the provincial IODE executive from Vancouver and of many Island branches are expected to attend a donation coffee party today marking the 50th anniversary of the HMS Ganges chapter. The affair will begin at 11 a.m. in the Salt Spring golf and country club. Proceeds will provide a seat for public use here.

PORT ALBERNI — The Red Cross branch has voted unanimously to name Douglas McNeil chairman of the Alberni Valley Red Cross campaign for the second consecutive year. Former campaign chairman James Robertson and Frank Harrison will assist Mr. McNeil during the drive next March.

NANAIMO — Two horses died and the car of Nanaimo Bay resident Fred Kent was wrecked Monday night when car and horses collided on the highway near Pleasant Valley. Mr. Kent was not hurt. One horse died instantly and RCMP destroyed the other on the word of a veterinarian called to the scene.

PORT ALBERNI — Two young district residents were sentenced in magistrate's court Tuesday for assault on Harry Cyr, who suffered facial and head cuts in a downtown fracas Sunday. Peter Eugene Webster was jailed for six months and Raymond Bouchard was given two months.

Rabies Tests Go On

Tests for possible rabies in bats sent from three Island centres are continuing in UBC laboratories with no positive results yet, provincial health department officials said Monday.

Live or dead bats were sent from Youbou, Beaman Island and Parksville during the summer after a bat which bit a dog in Youbou in June was found to be rabid.

However, the dog did not become rabid, nor did a 13-year-old Comox boy bitten by another bat on Beaman Island.

Alberni School

Old Furnace A Firetrap?

PORT ALBERNI — A potential firetrap exists in one of the Alberni district's primary school board meeting Monday night.

Mrs. F. G. Davies of C. T. Hilton primary school said a home-made oil furnace installed 80 years ago blasted classrooms with irregular temperatures.

She said the temperature in the furnace room varied from 68 to 107 degrees and the odor of burning paint could be detected.

Engineer J. B. Dyson said that "faults since the furnace had been installed had always been corrected with adjustments."

Trustees noted provisions had been made to replace the furnace but a new unit would not be delivered for at least six weeks.

They were also advised seven schools remained in various stages of renovation when pupils returned.

One Council Gets The Word

DUNCAN — Details of two school referendums totalling $844,653 which go before $217 district ratepayers Oct. 17 were given to North Cowichan council in a meeting with the district school board Monday night.

Duncan council, which had planned to attend the meeting, was unable to do so because of a conference at the same time with Cowichan Indian band councillors.

IN NEAR FUTURE — Some Duncan aldermen will probably meet the school board chairman and some trustees in the near future to learn the details.

North Cowichan councillors made no definite objections to the large school expansion program, sources said Tuesday.

In other matters, the school board decided to buy a new school bus in December or January and to buy electric stoves soon for all school activity rooms.

Hospitals Favor Nursing Homes

DUNCAN — A three-point program for nursing homes, drawn up by the new Cowichan, Newcastle and Islands Health Council, has been forwarded to Health Minister Martin by the B.C. Hospitals Association.

The move was announced Tuesday by officials of the council, which was formed last spring to cut costs and expand services among member hospitals at Duncan, Ladysmith, Chemainus and Ganges.

The resolution asks that the provincial government:

- Approve the construction and operation of non-profit hospitals, also known as nursing homes, in conjunction with acute-bed hospitals and preferably under the same management.
- Increase grants to half of the construction cost from one-third.
- Include operating costs for non-profit nursing homes under B.C. Hospital Insurance service.

The council said there is no such institution in its district. Any new one should be non-profit, publicly operated and close to acute-bed facilities for economical operation and sharing of facilities.

Medical care for the long-term patient would be improved, the council added. And such patients would not have to spend their life savings in private institutions.

The council decided the dieti-

'Own Negligence' Killed Victorian

CHEMAINUS — A 27-year-old Victoria motorist met death Sept. 6 "through his own negligence," a coroner's jury decided Tuesday night.

The jury was judging the case of Robert Walter Young, 1141 Bute, who died instantly when his car was hit broadside about five miles north of Duncan by a car driven by Melvin Baldwin, 29, of 2296 Gore Crescent in Sidney.

Mrs. Baldwin is still in hospital. RCMP Const. Stanley Jaworski of Duncan testified the blood alcohol content of the victim was .31 per cent, double the accepted figure for impairment.

Jack Roozendaal, attendant at a Duncan service station where Young stopped about 15 minutes before the crash, said the Victorian was abusive and "drinking heavy, which he told me."

He said Young was "willing to trade anything to get gas to get up to Nanaimo" and finally got $2 worth of gas for some car tools. They were to be redeemed the next day.

Skipper Drowned in Cabin Because Door Was Jammed

A jammed cabin door and windows too small for escape sealed the doom of a Victoria skipper who drowned in his sinking fishboat Thursday, a coroner's jury was told Tuesday.

The jury found Vadim Stavrov, 56, of 1025 Carberry Gardens, met accidental death by drowning. An experienced seaman, he was trapped in the cabin of his sinking fishboat in the inner harbor approaches.

SLIDING DOOR — Navy divers testified they had to force open a sliding cabin door with a crowbar to free the body.

They said the boat heeled over on one side and the sliding door was slammed shut and jammed. A haap was also flung over its hook by the impact of the slamming door, further sealing the cabin.

Though he broke a side window the victim was too big to squeeze through it and had time only to call once for help before the boat sank, said witnesses.

John Dunes, a close friend of Mr. Stavrov, described the victim's fishboat Janos, a vessel of just under 22 feet, as tender. This means "inclined to heel over" because of a narrow beam.

SAME PURPOSE — He said the 63-inch beam was narrow compared with modern boats used for the same purpose.

During summation later, coroner Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre interpreted this to mean "unseaworthy."

The witness objected from his seat in the public gallery and was ordered not to interrupt.

"I did not say that," Mr. Dunes objected.

He testified earlier Mr. Stavrov told him that day he was going to give the boat's new stabilizers a trial run.

Stabilizers are wood and steel devices trailed to keep fishboats steady when trolling.

Witnesses said they saw one of the craft's two baplopes trailing in the water and assumed a stabilizer had tumbled off one side of the deck. This could cause the boat to capsize.

Girl Tells Story

A preliminary hearing into charges of attempted rape and indecent assault against Daniel Stanley Fletcher, 20, of HMCS Naden, was adjourned Tuesday until today after testimony by three Crown witnesses including a 17-year-old girl.

The girl told magistrate's court a youth forced her to drink a quantity of wine and stripped her in the rear of his car late in August.

She said he threatened her after she twice escaped and ran screaming from the car parked in a secluded, unlighted schoolyard in Saanich.

A drive-in restaurant customer who made faces at a waitress after being asked to leave was fined $50 in magistrate's court.

Delano Mitchell, 22, of 831 Hockley, paid the fine for obstructing Const. Bonar Hanay, called when Mitchell refused to leave and gave the waitress a "bad time."

Climber Tells of Ordeal

'I Had to Think of Jenny'

COURTENAY — "I had to think of Jenny," experienced mountaineer Donald Apps said Tuesday. "There was a good chance she would have fallen if we had tried to go on."

The 26-year-old Cumberland mechanic was explaining how he and 15-year-old Jenny Walmsey of Courtenay became marooned for almost 24 hours on nearby ledges near the top of a 3,500-foot ridge in the Puntledge area 15 miles southwest of here.

'DIDN'T DARE' — He said they kept awake from Sunday afternoon until their rescue Monday afternoon because "I didn't dare let her fall asleep up there."

"We talked all the time," said Mr. Apps. "There was a danger of exposure if she fell asleep and she might have fallen off."

The two were on a climb with other members of the Courtenay Mountaineering Club.

CLIMBING AHEAD — "Jenny was climbing ahead of me," said Mr. Apps. "She's quit a good climber but she hasn't had much experience."

"The rock was rotten and kept coming loose. Our handholds and footholds kept breaking off as we climbed up, but I thought we could get to the top and come down another way."

"Jenny was about 35 feet above me when she called out she was stuck. She couldn't come down, so I tried to go up."

He found it too dangerous to reach the girl.

"I suppose we might have been able to get out, but it was safer to stay where we were. I've been climbing for eight years, but I had to think of Jenny."

NOT WORRIED — Mr. Apps said the other members of the club, climbing in another section of the same area, were not worried by their failure to appear and returned home as darkness fell.

"They know I'm experienced and shouldn't have got into a position like that," he said.

"They thought we had been caught by darkness while walking down through the timber and had decided to camp overnight."

SOME FOG, TOO — Mr. Apps said, "It was cold and raining and there was some fog, too. It was a miserable night."

Club member Keith Morton of Courtenay, who organized the climb, began a search at 8 a.m. Monday, expecting to find the two walking out to meet him.

He soon found them and returned to Courtenay for ropes. At 3 p.m., he and Peter Schultz returned, pulling Mr. Apps and Miss Walmsey up so they could climb down to safety.

Courtenay

Byelection Hassle In Campbell's Lap?

COURTENAY—The matter of a byelection for mayor of Courtenay may be settled by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, who is also the M.L.A. for this area.

City council Monday night gave the first two readings to a bylaw governing employment of municipal officials growing out of the recent appointment of Mayor William Moore as clerk-administrator, effective Oct. 1.

No mention was made during the meeting of his resignation as mayor, and Ald. Harry Harris suggested a byelection

Nov. 7, when district voters give their decision on a school referendum.

RUN TWICE

Sources pointed out later that, if a byelection was forced at this time, incumbent aldermen could run for mayor. If defeated, they could still seek election as aldermen in the annual December voting.

If there is no vote for mayor until December, aldermen seeking to move up would be out of luck if beaten.

Mayor Moore told council he and other aldermen who will attend the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention this week will discuss the matter with Mr. Campbell.

Asia Conflict To Be Topic

James George of the department of external affairs will speak on The Contest in East Asia when the Victoria branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs meets at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Paul Building on the University of Victoria Lansdowne campus.

Mr. George, appointed Canadian High Commissioner to Ceylon in 1960, toured South Asia's northeast frontier before his return to Canada.

NEW POSTS

The bylaw creates the positions of clerk-administrator, treasurer-collector, assessors, planning and approving officer and works foreman. Present personnel will fill all posts except the first.

Council learned a lawsuit between Commonwealth Construction and council has been dropped.

The suit started over an argument following installation of sewers about 1½ years ago. Crux of the matter was whether the firm should be paid to the invert or the top of the pipe.

AMERICAN SCHOOLS

Out-of-province universities added to the list: Queen's University, Kingston; the Universities of Saskatchewan, Western Ontario and Guelph, and the North and South Alberta Institutes of Technology.

The students will also be able to use the loans at 13 U.S. colleges: University of California, Harvard, Stanford, Universities of Idaho, Maryland and Wyoming; Loma Linda University, Montana State University, San Diego State College, Walla Walla College, Western Washington State College, Northrup Institute of Technology at Inglewood, Calif., and the Los Angeles Art Centre School.

Amalgamation Vote

Mac-Powell to Endorse Twin Cities' Decision

PORT ALBERNI—MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., "naturally, will accept the decision of the voters in the Oct. 17 plebiscite" on amalgamation, Alberni area general manager J. R. Forrest said Tuesday.

Mr. Forrest, as National Forest Products Week speaker before the Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce, also said the B.C. forest industry must constantly attract new capital and skilled manpower to hold its place in the competitive world market.

He said his firm recognizes the advantages that would follow amalgamation of Alberni and Port Alberni.

TWO CITIES

"Eighty per cent of our employees live in the two cities (60 per cent in Port Alberni and 20 per cent in Alberni)," he said, "and any municipal reorganization that would afford them greater benefits would meet with the approval of the company."

Mr. Forrest added:

"The decision rests with the taxpayers, most of whom are our employees or members of employee families.

"If they as voters feel greater municipal efficiency will come from an amalgamation of local governments and services, Mac-Powell would support that view."

WORLD MARKET

As for the industry's future, he emphasized that export sales contribute more than domestic sales.

Mr. Forrest said the industry, greatly expanding throughout B.C., will sell 80 to 85 per cent of its products on the world market in the near future.

He said the industry's future depends on new capital, an open door and aggressive trade policy, and a relatively assured wood supply.

The Mac-Powell manager said one study showed the world demand for wood products would probably be doubled in 20 years and continue to grow at the same rate.

"In order to compete in this expanding market," he said, "we need a well-managed woods program, capital for development and a well-qualified work force."

Wages and salaries in the Alberni Valley doubled to $22,367,000 in 1962 from $11,670,000 in 1953, bringing the average personal income two years ago to $4,975.

PAYROLL DOUBLE

Mr. Forrest said the labor force increased by one-third in that period and the payroll doubled.

This showed machines had not replaced manpower. It also showed there are fewer straight laboring jobs but a greater demand for skilled technicians.

The manager also said Mac-Powell plants of the Albernis produced in 1963 lumber, plywood, shingles, pulp, paper and newsprint valued at a total of nearly $90,000,000.

Cowichan Bridge Destroyed

Vandals Kill Footpath Plans

No stringers attached above river now

By KLAUS MUENTZER

DUNCAN — Vandals have shattered the last hope of the Cowichan Fish and Game Association for an inexpensive completion of their long-sought Cowichan River footpath.

The mysterious marauders in recent days destroyed the remainder of a logging bridge at Skuta Falls, 12 miles west of here, which was damaged by arsonists about two years ago.

NOW THOUSANDS

The bridge was the footpath's only crossing point of the Cowichan River to link Duncan with Lake Cowichan.

Association president Arnie Williams said Tuesday what would have been a matter of only a few hundred dollars has become a problem of several thousands.

"It is completely out of the question for us to do it now," he said.

READY BY SPRING

Association members have cleared five miles of the proposed 25 miles of footpath and had been promised lumber and hardware to restore the stringers left after the fire.

"Our footbridge would have been passable by next spring," said Mr. Williams.

Instead, the 75-foot long stringers are resting in the river 80 feet below and power saw cuts in the logs can be seen clearly.

MUST HAVE HELP

Mr. Williams said a cable bridge now is the practical solution and help from senior governments is a must.

He warned that some of the heavy logs, if not removed, could start a log jam and block the river flow.

MAYOR WARNS

Mayor Dobson's warning referred to a delay in construction of the access roads, and city engineer Russell Potter suggested they come first, as Cowichan Way will be very expensive.

The Indian council, which acts as an agent for the Indians who own the land, agreed to put the access proposal before its next meeting on the basis that Duncan will pay 60 per cent of the cost and the Indians the rest.

SELL IDEA

Councillor Dennis Alphonse said the idea must be sold to the owners.

Indian agent Ron Sampson said no real difficulty has to be overcome at this stage as the owners have already given approval in principle to the leasing of their property.

Duncan council also gave the first two readings to a bylaw which will allow the city to buy the 6.7-acre Wharmcliffe Road playing field of the Cowichan Cricket Club for $18,500. The land will become a playground.

Correction School 'Obsolete'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former probation officer Michael Audain made some sharp criticisms of Brannan Lake Industrial school, and a school spokesman replied quickly in kind.

Mr. Audain said the correctional school for boys is obsolete. He said harsh disciplinary measures include sentencing boys to periods in wire cages with little clothing.

The spokesman for the school said Mr. Audain had never been in any part of the school except the dining room and administration offices.

NOT A JAIL

Anyone could inspect the institution at any time, the spokesman said. There were no cages.

"It is not a jail, but a correctional institute," he said. "We have even been criticized for not being tough enough."

Mr. Audain said in a letter to all members of the B.C. legislature a corrections expert should assist the government in planning adequate facilities for Brannan Lake.

Perrault Demands:

'Change Scandalous Distribution'

NANAIMO—Calling the present situation "scandalous," B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault Wednesday demanded redistribution of provincial legislative seats on an "urgent basis."

Mr. Perrault, speaking at a Kiwanis luncheon, proposed a non-political triumvirate of the provincial chief justice, the chief electoral officer and the president of a university.

It would submit redistribution proposals to the government every 10 years following the federal census.

The "enlightened self-interest of Premier Bennett is causing maintenance of the status quo," he said.

"The coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs isn't going to change his lineup that won the Stanley Cup last year."

The Liberal leader also suggested the end of the idea of "absolute one-for-one voting equality" as accomplished in Manitoba in 1957 with the co-operation of all parties.

Two classifications were established, rural and urban ridings, and it was decided that seven votes in an urban riding would be equal to four votes in a rural riding.

"This province is changing so rapidly that precise representation by population would result in an underrepresented hinterland," said Mr. Perrault.

But his triumvirate "and their computerized assistance" would take into account such factors as population data, income and age structure and distance from major centres.

Other considerations could be determined only by an intensive legal, academic and economic study.

The present "scandal," he said, gives one voter in the smallest riding the same power as 38 in the largest.

"The present electoral representation is unfair, unrealistic and undemocratic," said Mr. Perrault.

"Changes are required in this province, changes that would have an effect, inevitably, upon the political situation, one way or the other."

He also proposed a daily verbal question period in the legislature "to keep the government alert and efficient."

Demanding reactivation of many legislative committees, he said their intelligent use would eliminate much of the wrangling "which serves to discredit us in the eyes of many people."

"Both in Victoria and Ottawa, government procedures are along at a 19th century pace," he said. "A restive public has every right to demand reforms that will see both parliament and the legislature dispose of urgent public questions more efficiently, democratically and economically."

Voting Equality Needed

To Streamline Session

NDP Plugs Reform Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The New Democrats, apparently hoping to forestall any one-sided action by the government on parliamentary reform, launched a public campaign Tuesday with concrete proposals for a more orderly conduct of parliamentary business.

Party Leader T. C. Douglas, flanked by most of the party's 17 MPs, outlined a 10-point reform program which includes adoption of a general timetable for Parliament within which the parties could negotiate allocation of debating time.

He told a press conference that the aim is to strike a balance between full debate on legislative measures and the need to get public business done.

PROPOSALS DISTRIBUTED
The New Democratic proposals, embodying many of the suggestions advanced by party whip Stanley Knowles to a Commons committee on rules reform, are being distributed to all MPs, newspapers, broadcasting outlets and periodicals in an effort to spark public discussion.

They follow closely on statements by Prime Minister Pearson that unless the parliamentary reform committee, stalled over recommendations about dividing up debating time, acts soon the government may have to act on its own.

MAY UNDERCUT RIGHTS
Mr. Pearson wasn't explicit about the kind of action but New Democrats say they fear any government proposals to change parliamentary rules may be too one-sided and undercut essential opposition rights.

The 10-point plan also appeared to be aimed at getting

OTTAWA (CP) — New curbs on foreign investment in Canada's banks, life insurance companies, trust companies and loan companies were announced in the Commons Tuesday night by Finance Minister Gordon.

The minister told reporters later that there is "nothing retroactive" about the proposed legislation. Present non-resident shareholdings in these institutions would not be affected.

Basically, he proposed that effective at midnight Tuesday there would be a limit on non-resident shareholdings in these financial institutions of 25 per cent of issued shares.

SAME DATE

Mr. Gordon said he will introduce today legislation dealing with the insurance, trust and loan companies. The bank legislation would follow later, but the effective date would be the same.

The minister said today's legislation also will contain these features:
Investment powers of the trust, loan and insurance companies would be broadened. The limit on their investment in common stock would be raised to 25 per cent of assets from 15.

LIMIT RAISED

The limit on mortgage loans would be raised to allow these companies to lend up to 75 per cent of the value of the property instead of the present two-thirds of value.

Power of insurance companies to invest in real estate would be broadened.

Mr. Gordon gave this description of the foreign ownership proposals:

HOLDINGS LIMITED
Total number of shares of capital stock of these financial institutions that could be owned by all non-residents would be 25 per cent of all issued shares.

Holdings by any one non-resident would be limited to 10 per cent of issued shares.

Shares held by shareholders associated with the non-resident would be taken into account in determining the 10 per cent.

There would be nothing to

Critics Praise Investment Curbs

OTTAWA (CP) — Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), a financial critic for the Conservative opposition, Tuesday night commended the government's move to put new curbs on foreign investment in Canada's banks, life insurance companies, trust companies and loan companies.

He told the Commons after the government plan had been outlined by Finance Minister Gordon that generally the Conservatives believe this is a move in the right direction. He said the move originally was started by former Conservative Finance Minister Donald Fleming in 1957.

Mr. Lambert said the minister's statement contained wide-sweeping implications which would have to be studied carefully by the opposition before further comment could be made.

ENFORCEMENT DIFFICULT
Collin Cameron (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands), NDP financial critic, commended Mr. Gordon for the basic aim of the legislation but expressed fears it would be difficult to enforce and police it.

Restrictions on corporate voting rights might prove almost impossible for the federal government to supervise.

He urged Mr. Gordon to revive his dormant proposal for a Canada development fund, which would channel pension plan reserves and other public capital into the private sector to replace foreign investment.

DRY UP SOURCE
Gilles Giguere (Lapointe), Creditiste financial critic, said the legislation will dry up an important source of investment capital. This source would have to be replaced by the federal government or Canadian investors or the economy would suffer.

Bert Leboe (SC—Cariboo) did not comment on the announcement, saying he preferred to wait for the detailed bill. He expressed the hope, however, that the forthcoming Bank Act revision will give banks the right to offer first mortgages.

Secret's Out—Russians Join NATO

LONDON (AP) — Soviet planes, surface ships and submarines shadowed a North Atlantic Alliance naval exercise Tuesday, but Western commanders said the Russians would be more of a help than a hindrance.

NATO naval sources had said Monday they hoped to keep the exact area of the Atlantic exercise "team work" a secret from the Russians in order to prevent the pre-positioning of Soviet observer ships.

No announcement was made of where the exercise would be conducted until most of the warships of seven participating North Atlantic Pact countries were out to sea. Full radio silence was observed.

But naval sources reported Tuesday that Soviet planes, surface ships and submarines were shadowing the NATO manoeuvres between Iceland and Norway.

Two Crusader jet fighters from the U.S. aircraft carrier Independence intercepted two Soviet Bison bombers and escorted them out of the area. The U.S. and Soviet pilots waved to each other as they flew side by side.

Rear Admiral Horace R. Law, a descendant of Britain's naval hero Lord Nelson, said:

"We reckon we learn more from them, having them around, than they do from us."

The 53-year-old Dublin-born U.S. admiral, whose great-grandmother was Charlotte Nelson, Duchess of Bronte, told reporters at a defence ministry briefing:

"The Russians can tag along, following the Independence, but they don't have carriers. If they want to learn something, they can learn a lot from watching States, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Norway are taking part in the exercise which continues until Oct. 2."

Yukon Official Says:

Let's Talk Over This Merger Plan

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — A member of the Yukon territorial council says the council should be "assembled at once" to discuss a proposal by Premier Bennett that the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and B.C. merge into one province.

"The council should be assembled at once so that we can discuss this and other ideas that have come out of the Alaska-B.C.-Yukon conference meeting," said Kenneth Thompson.

A poll of Whitehorse residents by the Star reported strong support for the proposal.

Meanwhile in Vancouver, Erik Nielsen, Conservative MP for Yukon Territory, termed the Bennett proposal "harebrained."

"Very few people—in fact hardly anyone—is taking the premier seriously," he said in an interview.

ATLIN, B.C. (CP) — A helicopter pilot from Saanich watched in horror Monday as a single-engine Beaver aircraft curled into a spin and carried four men to death in Trapper Lake, 90 miles southwest of here.

Pilot William Dicks of Terrace, B.C., was killed, along with three prospectors, one of whom was identified as E. J. (Ted) Powell, about 25, who came to Canada two years ago from Rhodesia.

A third victim was identified as Robin Gum of Crystal Brook, South Australia.

Name of the fourth victim was withheld.

Rod McRae, spokesman for Julian Mining Company of Vancouver, which employed the three prospectors, said helicopter pilot Bill Clifford of 5206 Old West Saanich Road witnessed the crash.

The Beaver had just taken off from the lake, about 320 miles northwest of Prince Rupert, B.C. It climbed to about 800 feet, then fell into a spin and crashed into the water.

Clifford flew his helicopter over the crash scene but was unable to pick up any of the victims.

Watching from the shore were Clifford's mechanic, Bert Fallman of Vancouver, and mining company personnel Bob Adamson, Joseph Roscoe and Norman McLeod.

Clifford is a pilot for Vancouver Island Helicopters Ltd.

Cuban Flying Wedge

NASSAU (AP) — Bahamian government sources speculated Tuesday that Cuban Premier Fidel Castro might have opened an air route between Cuba and Nassau in the hope that he could bring home badly-needed American materials from the Bahamas.

OVERLOOKED

"We have told him that we will detain and deport any passengers coming in from Cuba on his planes," one high government source said. "That would make it rather pointless for him to operate a passenger service."

"We had overlooked the possibility that he might try to buy American spare parts, machinery and other goods and fly them to Cuba."

"He can buy these goods in Nassau just as well as he could in Miami (Florida)."

Government officials were reported searching the Bahamas' customs laws, trying to find one that could be used to block such aerial shipments out of the islands.

If none is found, one source said, the governor of the British colony could call the cabinet into session to draft regulations which would cover the situation.

The government-operated Cuban Airlines flew a Russian-built Ilyushin plane to Nassau Monday and announced it would fly a weekly schedule between here and Havana. The plane carried only mail and a six-man crew.

Gladys Strands 3,000 On Coastal Islands

KITTY HAWK, N.C. (UPI) — Hurricane Gladys stranded 3,000 persons on North Carolina's Outer Banks Tuesday night by kicking up towering seas that sent breakers rolling across highways along the island chain.

The storm was continuing to inch toward the mainland and was centred about 200 miles east and south of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

A Red in Schoolhouse!

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative MP Ken More said in the Commons Tuesday night many Saskatchewan parents are worried that a visiting Russian professor of economics at the University of Saskatchewan will spread communism among the student body.

Mr. More, MP for Regina City, said he has received several letters from persons who were perplexed and "aroused" to learn that Prof. A. B. Nicolae of Moscow State University will teach economics at the Regina campus this academic year.

He asked the government to explain the purpose of inviting the Russian professor to Regina. What would be the orientation of the Russian's lectures?

"How far can he go?" asked Mr. More.

"He's going to deal with adolescent minds." The government should give assurances that Prof. Nicolae would not spread Communist ideology and that national security would be fully protected.

Stanley Haidasz, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Martin, said the University of Saskatchewan took the initiative late last year and asked Soviet authorities to recommend a Russian who would be visiting professor at Regina for the 1964-65 academic year.

He said the external affairs department approved the project as part of the cultural exchange program in effect between Canada and Russia for several years. There had been no reason to deny a visa to Prof. Nicolae, 41.
